MOB OF WOMEN ATTACKS THE KING

PELLETIER TO WAR ON EGG MEN

"Boston bakers are using 4,000 pounds—two tons—of rotten eggs daily in the cakes and pies they bake."

Harry P. Cassidy, by exposing in his article in the Sunday AMERICAN this filthy and disgusting traffic, has aroused a storm of protest and indignation that is sweeping clear over the State. District Attorney Pelletier is already taking steps to bring those who have violated the law to justice.

Four rotten egg dealers are selling practically all the rotten eggs marketed in Boston. A bacteriologist, testing samples of these eggs, injected a few drops into a guinea pig.

THE GUINEA PIG DIED.

Yet these same eggs are being used daily—two tons of them—in the cakes and pies sold by some of the biggest bakeries in Boston.

Mr. Cassidy today calls upon every man, woman and child who wants to see this deadly traffic smashed to demand that the Legislature pass a bill which will do just that—SMASH THE ROTTEN EGG TRUST!

Such a bill is before the Legislature. A hearing upon the bill will be given tomorrow.

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

Following the exposure of their traffic in the Sunday AMERICAN, the rotten egg dealers of Boston today prepared to fight extermination.

Lulled into a false sense of security by the previous complaisance of the health officials, and their long continued immunity from prosecution, they were shocked to find the complete details of their trade laid before the public.

Acting on information I laid before him, District Attorney Pelletier has begun an investigation with the purpose of punishing, to the limit of the law, the rotten egg traffickers. Mr. Pelletier plans to do what the officials of the State Board of Health should have done long ago.

The District Attorney deserves all credit for his course. Only determined and vigorous prosecution, coupled with the fullest publicity, can disturb the serenity of the rotten egg men.

The rotten egg dealer can stand an occasional arrest, and a fine of $50 or so. Such arrests help the records of the health officials—a little—but they hurt the rotten egg men not at all.

The biggest rotten egg dealer in Boston, Morris Brown, of No. 163 Fulton street, makes by his rotten egg traffic A HUNDRED AND FIFTY DOLLARS A DAY.

What does an occasional $50 fine matter to him?

In yesterday's AMERICAN I showed how the rotten egg dealers buy the rotten eggs from the consumers at prices ranging from a cent to three cents a dozen—how they break those eggs into cans and sell them to bakers at prices averaging twelve cents a dozen—at a profit averaging ten cents a dozen.

Morris Brown sometimes sells two thousand pounds of rotten eggs a day.

That gives him a profit, clean to $200 a day.

A TON OF ROTTEN EGGS! And many

Wilson to Attend Many of Baseball Games This Year

WASHINGTON, March 10.—At least one of the precedents of the White House, that which says that the President of the United States shall be an ardent baseball enthusiast, will be upheld during the new administration.

President Wilson let it be known today that he intends to make good use of the good season passes to all major league baseball grounds in the country, which annually are presented to the President. When president of Princeton, Mr. Wilson was a warm advocate of college athletics and particularly fond of baseball. He had little time to give to the game when Governor of New Jersey, but now that he anticipates having at least three afternoons a week in which he can seek recreation of some sort, the President expects to attend many of the games which the Washington team will play at home.

Secretary Tumulty said today:

"You can be assured that the President will be on hand for as many of the games as he can possibly get to. He loves baseball and has an extensive knowledge of the 'inside' of the game. Incidentally, I am a great fan myself."

J. P. MORGAN LEAVES EGYPT ON THE FIRST STAGE OF TRIP HOME

CAIRO, Egypt, March 10.—J. Pierpont Morgan, who has been spending his Winter vacation in Egypt, left here with a party on a special train today for Alexandria to sail to Venice, there on the steamer Adriatic for Naples. This is the first leg of the journey which will eventually take Mr. Morgan to New York. The financier showed few if any traces of his recent illness. He looked well and declared that the trip in Egypt had done him a great deal of good. "I have enjoyed myself very much," said he.

POPE IS BETTER; SISTERS RIDICULE ORDERS TO REST

ROME, March 10.—Pope Pius is better today, according to the latest reports from the Vatican.

The sisters and niece of the Pontiff again visited him. They found he was not depressed and ridiculed what they regarded as the useless precautions of the doctors, who, however, insist on a prolonged rest.

The Pope complains of a sore throat, which his physicians attribute to inflammation of the tonsils in consequence of his catarrhal trouble.

SLOT MACHINE MAN GETS SIX MONTHS

Walter Hodgkins of No. 9 Western avenue, Gloucester, was in the Newton Court today on charges of promoting a lottery. The police say he is the man who has placed at least 1,200 gambling slot machines in Massachusetts. Hodgkins pleaded guilty and was given six months in the House of Correction. He appealed. The complaints were made by the Watch and Ward Society. In previous cases in this State proprietors of stores were arrested. This time the police went after the promoter.

GUATEMALAN CITY LEVELLED BY 'QUAKE

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The city of Gualjmquilapa, Guatemala, was destroyed by an earthquake, Saturday, according to dispatches received by the State Department today from the American charge d'affaires at Guatemala. Because of the destruction of telegraph lines, the Guatemalan government has been unable to ascertain the loss of life.

W. H. LEWIS QUITS LAW DEPARTMENT

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The resignation of Assistant Attorney-General Lewis of Boston, the colored member of Wickersham's staff, was accepted today by Attorney-General McReynolds. Lewis refused to discuss the matter.

CHINESE KILLED IN TRUST WAR

Boston police officers and detectives learned today that George King, superintendent of the Chinese Sabbath School on Tyler street, and one of the most prominent young Chinese merchants in Boston, was shot to death because of a business feud.

Friends of King declared today that he was murdered in Beach street Sunday night by a paid assassin as the result of bitterness engendered between rival Chinese laundry "trusts."

Four Under Arrest.

Four Chinese were arrested as suspects. Charlie Chin and his partner in a Somerville laundry were arrested and so were a Lynn laundryman and a resident of Chinatown. After the four prisoners had been examined by Captain Armstrong at police headquarters they were released today. Their stories were first verified. They were listed as witnesses of the shooting.

The police believe the murderer is hiding in Boston.

King was rapidly extending a chain of laundries, the development of which was looked upon with alarm, the police say, by rival laundry syndicate.

Looking upon the young Christian as a dangerous business foe, enemies are said to have hired a pair of "gunmen" to put him out of the way. It was figured, say the police, that King's death would cripple or end a competition that was daily becoming more menacing.

Paid to Slay King.

The police of Division Four scout the theory that King's murder was due to a war between the rival Tongs. They don't look for any further outbreaks.

The police say Warry Charles was the "head and brains" of the Hep Sing Tongs. He and his associates were convicted in the first degree for the last big "round-up." One prisoner died, several others were electrocuted and Warry Charles had his sentence commuted to a life term.

The police are also convinced that at least two men were paid to do the killing, and that Joe Wing, his partner who was with King when he was shot from behind an elevated upright, was also marked, but escaped.

According to the police the assassin was not imported as is the practice. Americans who witnessed the shooting and who are familiar with Chinatown have furnished the police with accurate description of the man who shot King. The police say he is a resident of the Boston Chinese colony.

BRANDEIS' PLAN WINS IN STRIKE

A settlement of the strike of the cloak and skirt workers employed by the Cloak and Skirt Manufacturers' Association, numbering 2,200 men and women, nearly one-fourth of the entire number out on strike, was effected today.

The settlement is on the basis of the Brandeis preferential union shop and joint board of sanitary control plan, and negotiations are also under way with the Ladies' Garment Manufacturers' Association and officers of the union looking toward the same kind of a settlement.

It is thought that this settlement will be made today, guaranteeing 50 hours and better working conditions.

In the association which signed the agreement today there are twenty-eight of the largest cloak and skirt manufacturers in Boston, employing 70 per cent. of those who have been on strike.

12,500 Now on Strike.

There are now on strike 2,000 members of the United Garment Workers' Union who work on mens' and boys' clothing and who have been out five weeks, and 9,500 members of the Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, who went out a week ago Friday. Of these 8,500 are waist and dress makers.

The women did much to bring about a successful conclusion of the strike. They are Mrs. Davis R. Dewey, wife of the Technology professor; Miss Josephine Casey, the union leader from Chicago, and Miss Gertrude Barnum of New York, who helped to win the strike there.

Four arrests were made in connection with the strike today. Fanny Bargman, aged twenty-three years; Goldie Baker, aged nineteen, and Rebecca Novick, aged nineteen, were arrested in front of No. 16 Beach street, charged with assault on a non-union worker. James Maslis, twenty-three years old, said to be a striker-breaker, was arrested charged with assault with a club on a union picket.

Maslis went to Horn & Mitchell's tailor shops at No. 16 Beach street, where he is employed. The strikers chased him to the door. He drew a club from his pocket and cut open one of the strikers' head. The sight of blood and cries of pain incensed the pickets and they rushed for Maslis. The police closed in and seized Maslis, but the strikers struggled desperately to get at him. The police drove them back and took the prisoner to the station, where he was charged with assault.

When the Bargman and Baker girls were arrested on Beach street several hundred pickets rushed at the policemen and tried to rescue the prisoners, who are charged with assaulting an old woman.

Inquiry on Police Charges.

Startling disclosures were expected today with the arraignment in the Municipal Court of a score of striking garment girls, some of whom charge the police stirred up trouble and then made arrests, which, it is alleged, were unwarranted.

Today also brings the crucial test in the women's clothing strike. The dress and shirtwaist manufacturers will reply as to whether or not they will establish a "protocol of peace."

If there is no hitch, the union strikers ready to send back 600 dress and shirtwaist makers tomorrow. Attorney Leon R. Ryges, counsel for both sets of manufacturers, is advocating a peace protocol.

In New York 20,000 women and girls employed in the misses' and children's dressmaking trade went on strike today. There was no disorder. The workers are striking for a fifty-four-hour week, a twenty per cent. wage increase, abolition of the sub-contract system, abolition of tenement house work and the granting of a union agreement similar to that recently granted to other branches of the garment making trades.

MILITANTS HUNTED IN COMMONS VAULTS

LONDON, March 10.—For the first time since the militant women of England inaugurated their campaign of violence as a means of getting the ballot, suffragettes made a personal attack on King George today.

If the attempt had not been expected and police arrangements made to repel it, the British monarch might have suffered personal injury at the hands of the mob of women who swarmed down upon the royal coach.

The attack was made near Marlborough House while King George was returning to Buckingham Palace, after having opened the new session of Parliament.

The attack was led by two women who had been standing in the line of spectators waiting for the King to pass. They were dressed in long cloaks beneath which were hidden "Votes for Women" banners.

Just as the royal coach drew opposite the women dashed through the police lines, waving aloft the banners which they had withdrawn from beneath their clothing.

"Give us votes," and "Sign this warrant giving us liberty," were among the shouts hurled at the King. One of the women waved a document above her head

Women Attack Soldiers.

The police and escort of soldiers closed in about the carriage while many men spectators ran forward, grabbing at the women. Many other suffragettes who had evidently been waiting for a signal, rushed out into the street and tried to pull the soldiers from their horses.

Pandemonium reigned, during which some one started the alarming rumor that the King had been assassinated. This intensified the anger of the crowd against the women, and if it had not been for the police some of the suffragettes would have perhaps been seriously injured. As it was

QUINCY MAYOR GETS ANOTHER THREAT IN MAIL

It became known today that Mayor Stone of Quincy has received another "Black Hand" letter, the seventh since he took office. The Mayor and Chief of Police Burrell, to whom the letter was given, today refused to make public its contents.

When Mayor Stone received a letter on January 23 he bought a revolver and keeps it in his desk. Today the doors leading from the Mayor's office to other offices were kept open so that the Mayor could have assistance in case of trouble.

Other letters received by the Mayor are said to have threatened him with bodily harm unless City Solicitor John W. McAnarney and Commissioner of Public Works Michael Shea are removed from office.

SAYS HUSBAND FELLED HER AND THEN GOT $1000

That her husband struck her on several occasions, once knocking her down, and then borrowed $1,000 from her father, "threatened to fill her full of holes," refused to support her and took away $900, which her father had given her for a wedding present, was told today by Mary L. Moore of Medford, before Judge Pierce in the East Cambridge Court at a hearing on her suit for divorce from John Edward Moore of Boston.

The Moores are well known in Medford, and a number of their former neighbors, many of them handsomely dressed women, were in the courtroom, while Mrs. Moore told her story. She is an attractive blonde about twenty-three, with sober eyes and a pathetic droop of mouth. She wore a tailor-made suit of blue with picture hat and lace at her throat.

In her libel she charges Moore with cruel treatment and non-support.

The couple were married in Medford February 12, 1911. Mrs. Moore said:

We went to live with my father. We were very happy for six weeks. My husband paid no board or rent at my father's house and my father finally spent $1,500 to furnish a flat for us where we went to live.

Then my husband began to abuse me. On one occasion he swore at me and afterward wanted to apologize but changed his mind and knocked me down.

On another occasion after knocking me down he went out and borrowed $1,000 from my father.

MADELINE REED, wife of Abington man who is said to figure in bad check arrest in Los Angeles.

MYSTERY IN REED'S ARREST FOR BAD CHECK

Mystery surrounds the arrest in Los Angeles of Edward W. Reed who, the police say, is the son of A. B. Reed, head of the lumber firm of A. B. Reed of Boston, Abington and Brockton, who is charged with leaving a trail of bad checks from the Atlantic coast to the Pacific. The parents of the Massachusetts Reed deny that the man arrested in Los Angeles is their son, A. B. Reed.

Reed's first claim to public attention came in 1911 when he "stole" the fiancee of his chum, John Stearns Abbot of Brookline, and married her. She was Madeline Madison, a member of the Big Review Burlesque Company. Reed was introduced to his wife by letter from Abbot, in Washington, and a day later Abbot received news of the wedding.

The Los Angeles police say that at several other hotels the young man is known as Theodore Whitman and Harry L. Crossett.

The specific charge on which Reed is arrested is of passing a bad check for $250 on Paul W. Trier, a former classmate of his at Dartmouth. In addition to this the police say that he has negotiated a $150 check since his arrival in Los Angeles.

BATTLE RAGES IN MEXICO NEAR ARIZONA LINE

DOUGLAS, Ariz., March 10.—Guerrilla fighting between Mexican rebels and federals is going on north of Nacozari in the hills east of the Nacozari railroad, according to word received here today. The rebels managed to detach a number of government troops from the main army and [illegible] wild and rugged country flanking the railway line on the east.

That a body of federal soldiers captured by the Carranza rebels have been executed was reported today in a private telegram from Chihuahua.

Refugees who crossed the line into Douglas from Agua Prieta during the night brought word that a battle is expected there which would jeopardize life and property here, as bullets would inevitably fall into this town. Soldiers from the Agua Prieta garrison broke into a saloon during the night, and after stealing a quantity of liquor became riotous.

General Ojeda, the commander of the Agua Prieta garrison, faces a serious situation and has sent word to Mexico City that he needs help at once. Capture of Agua Prieta by constitutionalists would be a severe blow to the authority of the government in Northern Mexico, as it is an important port of entry, and the rebels could levy upon the customs receipts.

STRANGER TAKES J. STEARNS CUSHING FOR "BILL" WATTS

The sun shone brightly, the air was pregnant with signs of Spring, J. Stearns Cushing, former member of the Governor's Council, strode along Tremont street, a placid smile on his face and deep contentment in his heart. He was filled with charitable impulses and the desire to do good to someone, when he was rudely jarred to earth by a deep-voiced shout of:

"Hello, Bill Watts."

He stopped, turned about and seized the hand extended to him.

"My dear sir," said he, "this is the second time I have been mistaken for Bill Watts, and I am flattered. I know him well and he's quite a good-looking fellow."

Wilson Receives Diplomatic Corps at White House

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Another change in the White House schedule was made today when President Wilson announced that except on cabinet days, he will make no engagements before 11 o'clock in the forenoon. On Tuesdays and Fridays the President will receive visitors from 10 to 11, and at all times during the afternoon. The President feels that the hours from 9 to 11 should be devoted to the signing of correspondence and other routine matters.

The President received the entire diplomatic corps today in the East room of the White House. At 9 o'clock tonight he will press the button which will open the "Breeders and Grazers" convention and horse show at Fort Worth, Texas. President Wilson and Mrs. Wilson will then go to the Belasco theatre.

Quincy Clubwomen Have Hot Campaign Over 'Phone Wires

The 400 members of the Quincy Women's Club waged a campaign over the telephones wires today. Half of the club favored the election of Mrs. Chandler W. Smith for president and the other half kept the "hello girls" busy in the interests of Mrs. Wilson Marsh.

The battle of ballots comes tomorrow afternoon when the clubwomen of Quincy meet to choose officers.

Mrs. Smith, the officially nominated candidate, is in California and Mrs. Marsh has declared that she will not take the office.

Mrs. Marsh, it was said, was approached by the nominating committee, which is headed by Mrs. H. H. Kitson, the noted suffragette. Mrs. Marsh declined with thanks. The committee wrote Mrs. Smith and she replied that she would consent to run. The nominating committee is made up of Mrs. William H. Dobbs Mrs. Frank Moore, Mrs. William Cummings and Mrs. A. N. Murray.

EAST BOSTON GIRL GETS $10,000 AWARD AGAINST THE "L"

One of the largest verdicts ever given against the Boston Elevated Railway Company was given today when Josephine Romana, a little East Boston girl, was awarded $10,000 damages by a jury in the second session of the Suffolk Superior Court. Under Justice Aiken presided. Suit for $15,000 damages had been brought.

Josephine, it was claimed, was playing in a vacant lot in Eagle street, near the Elevated baron, on September 1, 1909, when she picked up a live wire and was severely burned.

Damages of $9,400 were awarded by the same jury to Frank H. Dewey of Boston, for injuries he claimed he sustained by being knocked from a car in the subway.

HERR SOKOLOW, ZIONIST LEADER, SAILS FOR AMERICA

A cable message was received today by the committee in charge of Herr Nathan Sokolow's entertainment when he will visit the city that he has sailed on the S. S. "Kaiser Wilhelm II.," and will arrive in the city early March 18th. Herr Sokolow of Berlin is a member of the Zionists' Inner Action Committee, is editor of the "Hasefra" and was formerly the correspondent of the London Times. His visit here is looked forward to with great enthusiasm by the Jews.

He will be in Boston from March 28 until March 31. He will speak at the Twentieth Century Club, March 29, and at the Plymouth Theatre, March 30. Louis D. Brandeis will preside at this meeting, speaking for the first time on the Zionists' platform.

PARLIAMENT IS REOPENED; HOME RULE UP AGAIN

Five of the women were arrested and taken to the police station. The King remained calm through the exciting scene and once shouted to the police not to handle the women too roughly.

Search Vaults for Militants.

For the first time in a great many years the time honored custom of searching the vaults beneath the House of Commons, which has been done since November, 1605, when Guy Fawkes attempted to blow up the King and members of Parliament, was not an empty ceremony.

The recent threat of the suffrages to "startle humanity to the core" by some act of violence led to fears that the women might have hidden in the vaults for some criminal purpose.

A party of Yeomen if the Guard from the Tower of London, were accompanied by officers of the police when the tour of protection was made. No women were found.

One of the most important measures which will be before parliament is the Home Rule bill. While the bill was passed by the House of Commons at the last session, it failed to pass the House of Lords. Under the veto bill the Home Rule measure may be enacted into law by being passed by three consecutive sessions of the House of Commons, irrespective of any action, which may be taken on it by the House of Peers.

Should it be passed during the present session and again at the next session by the House of Commons, Ireland will become autonomous.

May Act on Suffrage Measure.

Another important measure, which may be up for consideration at the present session, is a universal franchise measure, granting votes to women.

Chancellor Lloyd George promised the women that a bill granting suffrage would be introduced in the present session, and the chances for its passage are good.

Another bill which will be acted upon during the present session is the disestablishment bill, reducing the holdings of the Welsh Church, which has grown enormously rich through its property rights.

A bill abolishing plural voting among Peers has been prepared, but whether it will be introduced or not has been definitely settled. Lord Haldane has plans for extensive educational reforms, but their condition at this time is more or less [illegible].

LIMITED RECOVERY CONTRACTS UPHELD

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Contracts limiting recovery for loss of shipment by railroads were held to be valid by the Supreme Court of the United States today in the case of the Kansas City Southern Railway Company against J. M. Carl of Gentry, Ark. The court in allowing two rates, dependent upon the valuation placed upon the goods and the risk assumed by the carrier was upheld.

SPANISH PREMIER INDORSED AT POLLS

MADRID, Spain, March 10.—The elections held throughout Spain yesterday for the Chamber of Deputies resulted, so far as we known at noon today by the ministerial administration, in the return of 95 Liberals, 55 Conservatives, 8 Republicans and 20 Catholics. Count Aivaro de Romanones, the Premier, is believed to be certain of obtaining a majority.

GARRISON RETAINS WAR OFFICE FORCE

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Secretary of War Garrison today announced that for the present he will retain the entire personnel of the War Department, including General Robert Shaw Oliver, assistant secretary. Secretary Garrison added that a number of changes might be made when he has "gotten better acquainted with the office."

LEWIS T. LEIGHTON, JR., missing East Providence man, whose mother asks the AMERICAN to find him.

Lewis T. Leighton, Jr., has been missing from his home at No. 97 Summit street, East Providence, R. I., since September, and his mother has written a letter to the AMERICAN asking for assistance in her search for her son.

Leighton left his home last September to go to Nova Scotia to work for a machinery company. He wrote his mother a few weeks before Christmas that he was coming home. He said he was going home by steamer to Boston and thence by rail. That letter was the last word Mrs. Leighton received.

The missing man is twenty-four. He has a sailor's head tattooed on one arm.

REPORT SALE OF JOURNAL TO PROGRESSIVES

The Boston Journal was today reported sold to leaders of the Progressive Party. No official statement of the sale could be secured from C. E. L. Wingate, the publisher.

The purchasers are said to include Theodore Roosevelt Charles S. Bird of Walpole, Progressive candidate for Governor last year; Matthew Hale and Charles H. Davis of Yarmouth, the engineer, who ware $10,000 at the Progressive dinner a few weeks ago.

Neither Bird, Hale nor Davis would make a statement this afternoon. It was declared the official statement would come tomorrow in the first issue of the Journal under its new management.

The Massachusetts Progressives have been anxious to have a Boston newspaper for some time, and it was no surprise that Mr. Munsey, who is himself a Progressive, was able to sell the Journal to the Massachusetts leaders.

The rumor that Colonel Roosevelt was among the purchasers could not be verified, and it was not known what party, if any, he would take in the management of the paper.

REPORT 40 DEAD IN THEATRE FIRE

PARIS, March 10.—Forty persons are reported killed and over twenty-five others injured today in a fire in a moving picture theatre near Lens in the department of Aisne. In the panic many were trampled to death.

MRS. WHITMAN FIGHTS TO HOLD SCHOOL PLACE

The fight to place "One Woman on the Cambridge School Committee" is being sustained right down to the opening of the polls. The election takes place tomorrow.

Properly speaking the struggle is a struggle to "keep" a woman on the committee, for the candidate of the mothers of Cambridge is Mrs. Florence Lee Whitman. Mrs. Whitman has served on the committee for some years and, her supporters declare, has given a good account of herself.

Mrs. Whitman today sent this letter to the editors of the Boston newspapers:

In the campaign for the coming election to the School Committee in Cambridge my attention has just been called to a circular letter sent out to voters by Dr. Leo T. Myles, the Democratic candidate.

A large part of this letter is devoted to a statement of what I advocate for the schools.

At this late day it is not possible to reply in detail. But I wish to say that as Dr. Myles has never, to my knowledge, attended a School Committee meeting since I have served as a member of that board, he is hardly in a position to state my views on the subjects mentioned.

As a matter of fact, the statements attributed to me in regard to the system of promotion and physical training are misleading and do not represent my position.

They should not be used to prejudice the voters of Cambridge in the coming election.

It appeared today in Cambridge as if interest in the contest of Dr. Myles against Mrs. Whitman quite overshadows everything else. The re-election of Mayor J. Edward Barry is "taken for granted," because of which fact the Democratic leaders are doing everything possible to make sure that the vote comes out. Their only fear is of Old General Apathy. Many Democrats regret that the party is apparently in the attitude of making war on the women of the city. Whatever happens, the Democrats are likely to retain their hold on the School Committee, where they have had a majority, even with Mrs. Whitman as a member of the board.

Little Sidelights on Our Buying of Bargain Lots

Story No. 1—(More to Follow)

TAFFETA for 1,600 dresses was sent by a big mill to a New York manufacturer to be made up into dresses. IT IS PRACTICALLY IMPOSSIBLE TO FIND THE IMPERFECTIONS, THEY ARE SO SLIGHT. We bought the lot for cash.

SPRING MILLINERY OPENING

March 11th 12th 13th

Tuesday, Wednesday & Thursday

Small hats are at the height of their glory. They are in a wonderful variety of shapes—oblong, deep, telescope, aeroplane, round and Oriental, with odd crinkles and slashes and folds and twists that are indescribable though fascinating. Everything shows the influence of the XIIIth Century and the Second Empire, while the Balkan war has let loose a riot of color. Such blendings and such contrasts were never before seen, for to the boldness of the East is added the daring of Paris and its love for the bizarre. Yet, too, there are quiet little hats—sweet and refined—for the woman of demure tastes—cute toques of soft straw, just relieved by a touch of trimming—a flower, a bow, a butterfly, maybe. All these are here in a bewildering variety. Take time to attend the exhibit during the opening days and familiarize yourself with the newest modes.

TEACHERS' 'GAG' RULE IS SCORED AT STATE HOUSE

The "Gag Rule" of the Boston School Committee, which forbids teachers from taking part in political discussion, or from attending hearings on legislation which will affect them, was denounced today at the State House before the committee of education at a hearing on a new bill drafted by former Senator Roger Sherman Hoar, backed by prominent people of Boston.

The new bill will prohibit any school committee in the State from discharging any teacher for exercising her constitutional rights, among them political activity, when it does not interfere with her school duties.

No public school teachers of Boston were present. Former Senator Hoar conducted the hearing for the advocates.

Among those who appeared in favor of the bill were James P. Moriarty, president of the Boston Central Labor Union; Rabbi Charles Fleischer, Miss Anne Withington of the School Voters' League, Mrs. Susan W. FitzGerald of the Political Equality Union; Mrs. Frank L. Young, Mrs. David I. Johnson, Professor George Burton of the Institute of Technology, Rev. Edward A. Horton, chaplain to the State Senate; Dr. Elisa T. Ransom, Miss Mary Locke, teacher in a private school in Boston; Henry Sterling of the State Branch of the American Federation of Labor; Representative Louis R. F. Smith and Miss Hall, secretary of the School Voters' League.

"I believe teachers are entitled to their constitutional rights," said Mrs. FitzGerald.

"So do I," replied Senator Clarke, amid enthusiastic applause.

Mrs. FitzGerald also said that the rule applied to teachers, not only when they were working, but even when they were sleeping.

NEWTON LABOR TANGLE SETTLED

A tangle over the employment of non-residents in the Newton street department was straightened out today when nine Italian laborers were discharged for the sake of "harmony." Last Summer civil service Agent Hatch allowed the nine men to secure work because no residents could be found. Saturday laborers who are residents of Newton were laid off. They complained.

SUFFRAGISTS TELL OF BIG PARADE AT MEETING TONIGHT

Prominent women in the suffrage campaign will speak at tonight's "experience" meeting in Huntington Hall, No. 491 Boylston street. Women who marched in the big Washington parade will tell of their experiences. Resolutions are to be adopted to be forwarded to President Wilson and members of Congress asking that Major Sylvester, head of the Washington police department, be discharged.

Mrs. Barton P. Jenks, a sister of Miriam O'Leary Collins of this city, is coming down from Concord, N. H., and the other speakers include Mrs. McCormack, Mrs. Fraser, Miss Louise Hall of Lowell, Miss Vera Williams, Mrs. Louis J. Jellison of Cambridge and Mrs. Susan W. FitzGerald.

BLACKSLEY TO BE DANIELS' ASSISTANT

WASHINGTON, March 10.—James 1. Blackeley, secretary of the Pennsylvania Democratic League, will be nominated by President Wilson to be fourth assistant postmaster-general, it was announced by Postmaster-General Burleson today. The President conferred with Senators Penrose and Oliver, Republicans, relative to the appointment. Neither opposed the selection.

SIX FISHERMEN SAFE FROM GALE

As their relatives in the North End were mourning them as dead, six Italian fishermen of the T wharf dory fleet came into Cohasset harbor today, frostbitten and almost starving. The revenue cutter Itasca, which was searching for them, was called back by wireless. They were blown out to sea by Thursday night's gale.

MORTON IMPROVING.

NEW YORK, March 10.—Levi P. Morton, former vice-president, is decidedly improved, according to a statement issued by his physician, Dr. Herman M. Biggs.

CAPITAL POLICE DENY INSULTING SUFFRAGISTS

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Vigorously defending the police arrangements for the suffrage parade on March 3, Major Richard Sylvester, chief of police of Washington, testified before the investigation committee today. He presented a statement showing that he detailed 455 policemen to guard the main part of the parade, whereas only 367 policemen were detailed to the same section for the inaugural parade.

Sylvester read reports from his captains. They were unanimous in declaring that no women were insulted.

Captain Henry Snyder reported that a suffrage van used for supplying lunches gave the police a lot of trouble.

Give Policemen's Numbers.

The driver refused to get in the line of march and moved only after a long argument with the suffragists. Then the cables broke, allowing the crowd to sweep the officers out of their positions, and as there were many women and children present, he said, the police were afraid to use force.

Sylvester denied he told the suffragists he would be unable to protect their parade, but he admitted he tried to dissuade them from parading.

Miss Janet E. Richards of Washington gave the numbers of two policemen who, she said, were making no effort to keep the crowd back. Miss Richards also testified that a sergeant and seventeen mounted policemen who appeared to have been detailed to protect the head of the procession deserted.

Tell of Insulting Remarks.

She complained because the women marchers were called "old hens," and she said she heard remarks like this: "We came to see chickens, but they are all over forty-five. Let's go home."

Asked by Senator Pomerene to explain why there was better order on the fourth of March than on the third, Major Sylvester said that on March 4th the crowd was spread out over a much longer stretch of territory than on the third.

Besides this, Major Sylvester said, Washington and the incoming crowds were educated to the inaugural parade. There was a display of military force which at least had a moral effect in causing the crowds to be respectful, while the suffrage pageant was unusual and of a character in itself to cause comment from a certain element which was difficult to control. He denied he had ever referred to any "riff-raff" coming from the South.

TEAMSTERS STRIKE ON NEW WIDENER LIBRARY, HARVARD

A strike of teamsters delayed work on the new Widener Library building at Harvard today, when instead of the twenty teams necessary to the work, only one man reported. The steam shovel men were reported to have agreed to strike at the same time, but at the last moment the arrangement fell through, and the machinery worked as much as the teaming facilities would admit.

The object of the strike was to secure more pay, and for time and a half for extra work. A special detail of police was placed at the entrance to the enclosure to prevent disturbance. Pickets were established by the strikers. The sub-contractors handling this part of the work are the Elston & Jones Company of Boston.

Fifty Flee Fire In Maverick House At East Boston

More than fifty guests fled to the street in a panic early today during a two-alarm fire which caused a damage of $2,500 in the Maverick House, Maverick square, East Boston. They were awakened by the sounding of the fire gongs and groped down the stairways.

A few of the guests, partially overcome by smoke, were assisted by policemen and firemen who ran through the house routing persons from their rooms.

The Maverick House is an East Boston landmark. It is a five story brick structure fronting on Maverick square and bounded on either side by Winthrop and Henry streets. On first floor are a cafe, billiard room, bar and stores. The second floor contains the offices, reception room and a dance hall, and the three upper floors are devoted almost exclusively to rooms.

Harry Phillips, the night clerk, found the office rapidly filling with smoke. He traced this to the billiard room. On opening the door, a rush of flame nearly carried him off his feet.

Phillips ran back to the office and after sounding the fire gongs hurried out and sounded an alarm from Box 627. Then he returned to help the guests out.

SEAMEN'S UNIONS AT ODDS IN COURT

A temporary injunction restraining the Atlantic Coast Seamen's Union from using that name and from taking the property of the Sailors' Union of the Atlantic was granted in the equity session of the Suffolk Superior Court today. It is charged by the original union that the new organization is deceiving seamen, and is securing money from them while making them think that they are joining the original society.

BISHOP LAWRENCE ST. PAUL'S SPEAKER

In St. Paul's Cathedral this noon, before a large congregation, Bishop Lawrence gave the first of five addresses to be delivered there this week on Christ and His influence on typical present day men. He said that the men who lived in Christ's lifetime were types to be met today, that human nature is much the same the world over and the centuries through.

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

'MOTHERHOOD IS BEST TRAINING FOR TEACHERS'

No woman ought to be permitted to teach children until she has become the mother of children.

Mothers make the best school teachers in the world.

Upholding both these points, Dr. Elisa T. Ransom of No. 390 Commonwealth avenue and Riverbank court, Cambridge, takes issue with certain members of the New York Board of Education, who, as an outcome of the much discussed Flatbush High School teacher, Mrs. Katherine Edgell and her application for a year's leave of absence in anticipation of a visit from the stork, declare the mother instinct fatal to school teaching.

"I taught and raised my family at the same time," asserted Dr. Ransom.

"I have two girls and only remained away from my teaching for a period of seven weeks in each instance."

She continued:

One of my daughters is seven and the other is ten. I taught in the Brookline schools several years and also in the Boston public schools, so you see I ought to know whereof I speak. When my children were born I occupied the chair of histology in the Boston University Medical School. That is a laboratory course entailing a great deal of work upon the lecturer.

Mothers make ideal school teachers. They understand the children far better than the single woman can. I say this with the firm conviction that it is so in every respect. No woman ought to be permitted to teach children until she has become the mother of children. Furthermore mothers make the best school teachers in the world.

Several members of the New York Board of Education, although in favor of granting Mrs. Edgell her leave of absence, maintain that the maternal instinct in a teacher is a bad thing.

As the result of the Edgell case the Committee on Civil Service of Women has come into existence in New York. It will advocate legislation and protest against discharging women who marry, and against the blacklisting of those who leave their employment to become mothers.

Mayor's Janitor Gone; Fitzgerald Own Furnace Man

Returning—in cold weather—to Boston, Mayor Fitzgerald found at his home on Welles avenue, Dorchester, three things missing. They were his fire, his ash cans, and his janitor.

Consequently, it became known today, the Mayor had an hour of hot domestic work before he attempted to get once more into affairs of State. The Mayor was not the man who didn't know how, and the Fitzgerald domicile was soon in rusing order again.

There will be an investigation, however, and it is feared that things will go hard with the men who beguiled away the ash cans and the janitor.

EARL'S BROTHER IN RUSH TO GOLD FIELD

TACOMA, March 10.—The Hon. Charles Fox Ramsay of England, brother of the Earl of Dalhousie and cousin of Sir William Ramsay, has joined prospectors stampeding to a new gold field discovered by Skookum Jim, an Indian and trapper in the Dease and Liard River wilderness, several hundred miles northeast of Wrangell, Alaska.

HARVARD MEN SAVE DROWNING GIRLS

Dorothy Grant, aged six, daughter of Herbert A. Grant, No. 12 Grove street, and Dorothy Nathan, aged seven years, daughter of William J. HAYES SIDEBOARD NOW IN BARROOM

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The famous Rutherford B. Hayes sideboard, from which Mrs. Hayes had all the wines and wineglasses swept before she sat down to her first meal as mistress of the White House, by a curious freak now graces a barroom in Washington.

A. F. OF L. INDORSES CITY MARKET PLAN

PROVIDENCE, March 10.—Delegates assembled at the quarterly convention of the Rhode Island State Branch, American Federation of Labor, unanimously indorsed the efforts to obtain a public marketplace for this city, in an effort to lower the high cost of living.

MEAT PRICES TAKE ANOTHER JUMP UPWARD

Meat in Boston has taken another jump upward in price.

Lamb is selling wholesale today 2 cents higher than last week. Pork has clambered a cent and a half. Bacon made a cent jump, and beef is expected to do a little mountain climbing in sympathy.

According to the Boston packers and wholesale dealers, the increase is due to snowstorms in the West, or a cold snap or something that delays the shipment of carcasses into Chicago.

The North Packing & Provision Company is quoting dressed pork at the same price as last week, 11 cents. Beef is 12 and 13 cents a pound straight carcasses, hinquarters 15 to 15½ and extra ribs 16 to 17 cents a pound.

Schwartzchild & Sulzberger quoted lamb at an advance of 1½ cents to 13½ and 15½ cents a pound. Sheep, which had been selling at 11½, is getting 12½ and 13 cents today.

Turkeys, scarce in the Boston market, are selling wholesale at 24 to 27 a pound, according to quality.

The increase of price, which has been consistent the last three weeks, is expected to seriously affect the retail price. One retail dealers said today: "If the market does not go down the retail trade will be seriously affected."

U. S. EXPERTS USE MONKEYS IN FRIEDMANN TEST

NEW YORK, March 10.—Following a thirty-minute test before the Government surgeons of his serum for tuberculosis, Dr. Friedmann announced today, before leaving for Montreal, that he will resume his treatment of patients here on next Thursday. Dr. John F. Anderson, one of the two government experts who watched the test, left for Washington today with cultures of the supposed white plague cure, which he will use in exhaustive scientific experiments on monkeys and perhaps other animals.

Dr. Arthur Stimson, the second government expert who attended the clinic at Mt. Sinai Hospital, where seven persons were treated with the serum, remains in New York to watch the result of tests there of the serum for the benefit of the government. Physicians who saw the test said they were more confident of the success of some of the Berlin expert's claims.

Dr. Friedmann's announcement follows:

When I return I will treat as many patients as there are cases charted during the six days from now to my return. I shall treat a great number of bone and joint cases. Those are cases which show results quickly, so that they are visible to the eye in a short time.

Tells of Test.

Dr. S. S. Goldwater, superintendent of Mt. Sinai Hospital, said after the test:

This hospital will receive a number of cases for Dr. Friedmann's treatment to accommodate the public health service. The hospital is to co-operate with the government in giving the culture a thorough and fair test. This co-operation came as the result of the request from the government officials.

Dr. Friedmann treated seven cases which had been prepared. Dr. Friedmann's connection with the hospital ceases until treatments are taken up again. The patients themselves will be under the control of the Federal physicians, and we shall have nothing to say about them. As to their present condition I can say that all seven are moderately advanced cases, and are such that will give every opportunity to really show the value of the culture.

Believes in Dr. Friedmann.

Three cases of pulmonary tuberculosis, one of a tuberculous elbow, one affected knee joint, one of a tuberculous kidney and the other a tuberculous rib. Four are men and three are women.

Our special contribution is to admit cases of surgical tuberculosis which have not been operated on, so that the government can make its tests. The cases treated by Dr. Friedmann in the hospital were moderately advanced and if anything remarkable happens it will surely mean a successful test of the cure. I believe Dr. Friedmann is sincere in his belief that he has found a a cure, but as to the outcome time alone will show that.

Hold Girl Choir Singer as Poison Pen Note Writer

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., March 10.—The mystery of threatening letters which shattered several homes and kept many prominent residents in a state of terror, is partially cleared today, and the entire town is stirred by the arrest of Miss Reona Swarts of Hughesville, a pretty young church worker and choir singer, who is charged with having circulated the poison-pen epistles. Even members of the Swarts family received the letetrs.

Miss Swarts was termed the "Williamsport Nightingale," because of her sweet soprano voice. The letters varied and the handwriting was so disguised that postal inspectors and private detectives worked on the case for several months before fastening the guilt upon Miss Swarts.

Many of the letters resulted in the separation of husbands and wives, owing to the imparting of information that was considered sealed forever. Other letters to prominent business men demanded large sums of money under penalty of exposure as to indiscretions with a mysterious blonde woman with a red hat.

WHITE HOUSE TO BE 'DRY' DURING WILSON'S TERM

WASHINGTON, March 10.—President Wilson's administration will be a wineless affair, with nothing stronger than lemonade on the President's sideboard, and nothing stronger than ginger pop in the Presidential Cabinet.

It is announced that when the President and Mrs. Wilson are entertained, they will not expect the elaborate wines which usually accompany such an occasion. In return, they do not intend to make affairs at the White House, of the wine bibbing order.

Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Bryan care for wines, and upon an occasion of their entertaining the British Ambassador, placed none on the table. They knew, too, that Mr. Bryce drank nothing strong.

It is figured that hundreds of thousands of dollars will be saved by Washington society, which is expected to follow the customs inaugurated by the President.

GUY LOWELL SPEAKS AT ART MEETING

Guy Lowell will be the speaker this evening at the Desprardelle Memorial meeting in Copley Hall, in place of Mr. Warren, the New York architect. The drawings will not be on view until tomorrow morning, Monday evening being devoted to the memorial meetings. Tickets will be necessary for the meeting but the exhibition during the rest of the week will be free.

WINTHROP MAN MAY DIE FROM BURNS

HATS FROM PARIS SELL AT 7C. EACH

ALTOONA, Pa., March 7.—The Salvation Army's store was besieged here by moke of women after it had been discovered that the very latest 1913 model Parisian millinery was being sold for a few cents a hat. The rush was so great that the police had to be called to restrain the women. A merchant's clerk donating goods made a mistake.

PROVIDENCE, March 10.—"We must stop the spread of tuberculosis" is the slogan of the Tuberculosis Conference which was held today under the auspices of the Rhode Island Anti-Tuberculosis Association. RUSSELL CASE REBUTTAL FIGHT NOW ON WAY

William R. Scharton, counsel for Dakota Dan, original claimant to the estate of Daniel Russell of Melrose, expects to start his rebuttal the latter part of this week.

It is said that he has some hot shot concerning the respondents' claim about the Russean family in northern New York.

Counsel for the Russell estate are rapidly bringing their direct case to a close before Master Percy, who is now sitting in a Suffolk County court room at Pemberton square.

Owing to alterations and repairs the Russell hearing was crowded out of the Middlesex County courthouse after having smashed the world's record in probate litigations for length of trial.

Upton to Resume Stand.

The hearing in Boston, which was attended by overflow gatherings, chiefly women friends of the ranchman claimant, was adjourned from last week until Wednesday.

Attorney Eugene C. Upton of counsel for the estate will resume the witness Wednesday morning. He will be cross-examined by Attorney Scharton.

Mr. Scharton has hammered Attorney Upton hard concerning the mysterious revolver which the lawyers for the will did not offer in evidence until last week.

Mr. Scharton wanted to know why Upton and his colleagues did not show this weapon to Dakota Dan as well as to Fresno Dan, the man who has been accepted by the estate as the long lost son and heir.

Knew of Secret Marks.

Attorney Nason, senior counsel for the will, brought out in direct examination of the fruit picker from Fresno, California, that the revolver had been reserved until the eleventh hour for a secret test by the man from Fresno and that Dan from the Pacific coast unhesitatingly picked out hidden marks in the mechanism.

Attorney Scharton will continue to question Attorney Upton why Dakota Dan the claimant from the ranchlands was not shown that same revolver to see if he could have picked out any familiar scratches on the weapon.

EXETER STUDENTS FACE EXPULSION

EXETER, N. H., March 10.—The ban recently placed by the faculty of Phillips Exeter Academy on dances has brought forth a storm of protest. Many of these protests have taken such form that as a result it is feared a number of the students will be expelled. One morning every bench in the chapel was turned around and the faculty chairs on the platform faced the rear wall. Yesterday two students went into the academy building, and, taking two busts from their pedestals, placed them on the preacher's desk in the centre of the platform. They then cut the rope of the chapel bell, and, placing it over a beam in the hall, hoisted a chair into the air, tied the rope and threw it up.

PUPILS' CONCERT AT FENWAY COURT

The concert will begin at 8 o'clock, and the list of patronesses will include Mrs. Oliver Ames, Sr., Mrs. Adamowski, Mrs. Louis D. Brandeis and Mrs. B. P. Cehney. The ushers will be largely drawn from the Vincent Club.

Town Hall Janitor Wants More Pay for His 116-Hour Week

The original "nothing-to-do-till-tomorrow" man has been found. He is Archie P. Martin, janitor of the Millbury Town Hall. He works 116 hours a week, which averages up to nineteen hours a day. He gets $600 a year and he is now asking the town to give him $800. Here is Mr. Martin's daily program.

Arise 5 a. m.; look after the fires in town hall building; home for breakfast; work until noon; home half an hour for dinner; rush back to hall and work 'till 6 o'clock; dash home for supper and back to open hall for night meetings; remain at hall until after 10 o'clock to close up; look after G. A. R. quarters and fire department headquarters; home midnight.

Archie usually sleeps most of the five hours he has to himself.

My Husband Is Still Sober

We Are Doing Well Now. Two Bottles of Renova Cured Him.

So writes Mrs. Bowman of Watertown; her experience is like that of hundreds of others and you can make it your experience if you have a dear one who is a victim of intemperance. Read her letter: "Would you please send me some of your circulars on Renova, as I have distributed all I had. My husband is still sober, two bottles cured him. We are doing well now. He travels nearly all the time and lives in the hotels and don't touch a drop." The woman who means business can have a sober husband. Just go to Riker-Jaynes and get a package of Renova and put a little of it into his tea or coffee. Absolutely tasteless and harmless and given without his knowledge.

If you'd like to try it—free—before you buy a whole package, write in confidence to the Renova Co., 204 Broadway, New York, for a sample and proofs of what Renova does for victims of intemperance.

Salves Can't Cure Eczema

In regard to skin diseases, medical authorities are now agreed on this:

Don't imprison the disease germs in your skin by the use of greasy salves, and thus encourage them to multiply. A true cure for all eczematous diseases can be brought about only by using the healing agents in the form of a liquid.

WASH THE GERMS OUT.

A simple wash, compound of Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol, and other ingredients as combined in the D. D. D. Prescription. This penetrates to the diseases germs and destroys them, then soothes and heals the skin as nothing else has ever done.

A 50-cent bottle will start the cure and give you instant relief.

Thousands of druggists make fast friends of their patrons by recommending this D. D. D. Prescription to skin sufferers, and they are so confident of what the famous remedy will do for you that they offer the regular size bottle for you to try it now on a positive no-pay guarantee. D. D. D. Soap keeps the pores clean. Ask your druggist for a cake.

RECORD BREAKING CROWD ATTENDS AUTOMOBILE SHOW

By J. C. KERRISON.

All records for attendance at the automobile show will be smashed today, according to the management who look for the greatest crowd that ever attended an industrial exhibition in Boston. When the doors close next Saturday evening. He based his prediction on the crowd that came Saturday night and early today.

There was a great crowd on hand and before noon time the building was filled with enthusiasts.

Manager Chester I. Campbell said today that he estimated that there would be over 200,000 people visit the show before

Thousands of visitors from every corner of New England are in Boston to attend the automobile show. Every hotel in the city is taxed beyond its capacity, and those who have to do with keeping tabs on such affairs say that the big Boston Auto show which opened Saturday night will be the greatest ever from all points of view.

Most everybody who figures in "Who's Who in Gasoline" is in town. Every motor car concern in the United States and all of the tire and accessory manufacturers have sent their representatives here, for they realize that of all the exhibits on the show circuit more actual sales are made here in Boston than at any other show.

The hundreds of men in the industry who braved the tremendous crowd that jammed Mechanics Building Saturday night declare that, from every angle, the Boston show is better than any of the national shows given in New York and Chicago this year. There are more exhibits, a greater variety of cars and the accessory and tire manufacturers have shipped their very latest products to display.

Manager Chester I. Campbell, who has direct supervision of the big show, declares that it will be a record-breaker. Even in the tremendous jam of Saturday night, there were a number of exceptional sales reported by the various exhibitors. Says Manager Campbell: "I don't hesitate to predict that nearly 300,000 persons will visit the show before the doors close next Saturday night."

Women are interested.

Even to the man who has "done" the New York and Chicago shows, it is apparent from a superficial glance that the Boston show is the last word in motor cars for 1913. There are a score of late models on exhibition that have been shipped direct from the factories, and have never been shown to the public before.

The self-starting device, of course, is the feature that is attracting the most attention. The majority of cars are equipped with them. The electrical starter predominates, although there are a few very practical and positive compressed air starters that are being shown.

With the coming of the self-cranking device the fair sex began to take a greater interest in motor cars. This device makes it easy for women to operate cars, and with nobody's interest quickened, then came the hundred-and-one devices that go for luxury and ease of operation.

Every dealer in th big show looks for an unusual attendance of women. They are now a big feature in the buying and the manufacturer has been quick to realize it.

To the men who are connected with the industry the show is something more than an exhibition. It's their time for reunions and the gathering of trade gossip. Several thousand representatives from the various factories are now in the city and many are due to arrive today.

Lee Anderson, advertising manager of the Chalmers, arrived yesterday morning. He was disguised as a Bostonian (he wears glasses) and feels quite puffed up because a guest at the Lenox mistook him for a native and inquired the way to Tremont street.

Harry Ford, the general manager for the Chalmers company, came along with his advertising manager. Manager Ford never misses an opportunity to visit Boston, as he has a host of friends here. He predicts a big season for motor cars and says the only trouble his factory has is to meet the orders that are coming in.

Many in Trade Here.

Jake Newmark, who directs the advertising department for the Oakland company, got here in time to visit the opening of the show, and declares it is the greatest show he ever attended. "Of course the Oakland has got the classiest exhibition in the entire display," says Mr. Newmark. "Just don't overlook it. It is a big Oakland touring car set into a black background, with a gold frame about it. With the white light reflecting upon it it certainly is a picture."

Another notable who arrived yesterday was Cortland Cramp of Philadelphia, of the ship building firm. His firm also is a big manufacture of white metal that is used in automobiles. Hense his visit at this time.

GOODYEAR TIRES LEAD AT SHOW

The tire count on show cars was again given to Goodyear Saturday night, thus adding the Boston show to long list of decisive victories. After the officials in charge of the count made a careful examination of the cars on display at the Mechanics Building, it was found that 129 of the 310 cars exhibited were equipped with Goodyear tires. According to C. M. McCreery, local manager of the Boston branch of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, the average Goodyear lead has been 74 per cent. at the shows held up to this time. In New York the lead was 108 per cent; in Chicago 118 show cars were equipped with Goodyears, which make every Chicago record on any make of tire.

CHANGE RULES FOR BIG MOTOR RACE TROPHIES

There has been a rearrangement of the Indianapolis speedway trophies for May 30, and, according to present plans, the Remy Brassard trophy, the Prest-O-Lite trophy and the Wheeler ... Schebler cup, instead of being raced for at the one, two and three hundred mile posts of the 500-mile race, will be given to the winners of the first two, three and four hundred miles.

The details of the manner in which the trophies above will be handed over to their winners are as follows: The Remy Brassard goes to the winner at two hundred miles, and the Remy trophy, valued at $2,500, goes to the owner of the car. If the driver uses Remy ignition, he receives in addition to the Brassard a salary of $50 a week for twenty consecutive weeks after the race. The Prest-O-Lite trophy goes to the man who is ahead at three hundred miles, regardless of any equipment he may carry. No cash accompanies this award, however. The Wheeler & Schebler $10,000 cup will be given to the victor at the four-hundred mile post. If he uses a Schebler carburetor, an additional cash award of $1,000 is his. Otherwise he gets only the glory. All of these trophies, with the exception of the cash awards, are returnable to their donors on demand. The plan is to offer them on the speedway every year.

The lastest entry for the third annual 500-mile International Sweepstakes race, to be held at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, May 30, comes somewhat in the nature of a birthday surprise party, for this is the manner in which the first anniversary of the Henderson car will be celebrated. The Hendersons of Indianapolis introduced the car that bears their name to the American public with a big parade and reception in the Hoosier capital during the second 500-mile event. After a period of twelve months a Henderson is going to make its debut with thirty of the fastest speed creations ever constructed, on the world's greatest race course.

The car will be a four-cylinder, equipped with demountable wire wheels to facilitate tire changes, and will be driven by Billy Knipper, a veteran, who long ago carved his notch in the speed contest Hall of Fame.

YOU CAN'T DODGE 'EM.

When the baby cries for milk,
Or when mother yells for silk
(Curse the luck!)
Take your phone in hand and say:
"Send these quick." They do—what way?
Auto-truck!

If the flat should catch on fire
Keep your head. Don't faint or cry of run amuck.
"Break the glass and turn the screw."
Fire is out before you're through.
Auto-truck!

When you die, as die you will
(For that's one thing, bless you, Bill, you can't duck),
You'll be rushed to your grave—Wow!
Sixty miles an hour—How?
Auto-truck!

CLARKE, NATIONAL SALES HEAD, HERE

J. M. Clarke, sales manager of the National Motor Vehicle Company, is attending the automobile show. Clarke is associated with W. H. Stevens during the show in the interest of the National cars. Clarke says that Boston is internationally famed as a good automobile community and that the coming season promises to be an exceptionally good one. Clarke says: "With the absolute perfection of our electric self-starter, and the many other modern improvements and refinements, the automobile of today is an ideal vehicle for women as well as men. A woman can step from her home into her luxurious National car, a touch on one button and the motor is started noiselessly, a touch on another button and she has electric lights if she wants them. Her hands, gloves nor dress come in contact with nothing that soils them."

ALL WHITE PARTS ARE ACCESSIBLE

Accessibility is carried to its highest point in the motors of White cars. The cylinders being cast in block and the intake and exhaust passages being formed within the cylinder casting, the motor is not encumbered nor obstructed with pipes, wires and fittings. With its compactness and clean designs, adjustment of one part is made without hindrance by another part.

SERVICE KEYNOTE OF KISSEL KAR

"Make the best car and back it with the best service" is the winning slogan of George A. Kissel, president of the Kissel Motor Car Company. Service is a hobby with the head of this concern that manufactures the Kissel Kar, and work is now under way which will considerably amplify the already fine chain of service buildings maintained by this company.

Quick Way to Cut Sheet Metal.

The quickest way to cut tin or other sheet metal with a cold chisel is to put it in a vise with the cutting line level with the jaws, and use the chisel along the top of the jaws. A straight, easy cut can be made in this way, and the sheet can be shifted if the cut is longer than the width of the jaws.

Goodrich Safety Tread

Best in the Short Stop

The five thick, tough rubber fingers which you see on this tire are the tread that makes the brake effective.

The Goodrich Safety Tread takes hold and helps.

It is your safety. Those fingers are not there to look pretty, they are there to work quick and surely for you, and when the moment comes for them to work they begin instantly.

The moment your car begins to slide—no matter whether the slide is forward, backward, sidewise, or diagonally—the skid is automatically stopped.

There is a principle in the Goodrich Safety Tread which is simple and human.

The five thick, tough rubber fingers act just as your own hand does when you "catch yourself."

Place your hand on a slick table top, bear down with all your weight, and see how your five fingers spread out and keep your hand from skidding.

These five fingers of the Goodrich Safety Tread work just that way.

They get a human hand-grip on the road.

There is nothing in Goodrich Advertising that isn't in Goodrich Tires

They shove the slush, mud, ooze, or greasy wetness away.

They clean the path and make it safe for the wheel.

They take hold and hold on.

They make your brake effective.

The best hub brake in the world can't stop a skid unless the treads of your tires are working with it.

The five thick, tough rubber fingers of the Goodrich Safety Tread catch the skid right away and stop it.

The Goodrich Safety Tread is not a theory, it is a fact. It is the scientific and practical application of a tested and proven principle. Goodrich Safety Tread Tires are made just as all other Goodrich Tires are made—unit molded.

Body and tread are literally molded into one integral piece by the Goodrich single vulcanization. The tread does not peel or strip, and the body does not have weak spots or dead places because of over-vulcanization which cooks the life out of the rubber.

Motokloth

SUPERIOR TO LEATHER

MOTOKLOTH was conceived and designed to take the place of Leather in the upholstering of Motor Cars by manufacturers who brought to the work the experience of a lifetime.

MOTOKLOTH is a pure Virgin Wool Upholstery Fabric, beautiful in design and coloring, and superior to Leather. Is soft to the touch, pleasing to the eye and durable in usage; Dust, Sun nor Rain cannot injure it. Leather dries out and cracks, and must be dressed and oiled to restore its looks, which process is harmful and injurious to garments, as owners of cars can testify.

MOTOKLOTH may be seen at the Boston Automobile Show, being used by the

REFINEMENT IS FEATURE OF 1913 CAR

Manufacturers of motor cars in the United States have kept pace with the times and the models for 1913 are perfect examples of automobile refinement. Some have outstepped the paces of average improvement and pioneering is in evidence in not a few machines. Wire wheels and the sleeve valve motor are the most notable evidence of pioneering. Their importance as factors in the industry of motor car construction this year are less important, because less frequent than the more general improvements in the way of self-starters, six cylinder motors, fullness of equipment and distinctive body designing.

This year has been characterized as a culmination of the self-starting idea which had its dawn last season. It also has been characterized by the almost universal adoption of the six-cylinder motor in at least one model offered by every company. Wire wheels as a stock product are as yet untried, and while a few manufacturers have included them in their equipment, the practice is so infrequent that it cannot be said to have become standard. This also may be written of the sleeve valve motor.

The saying that pleasure cars have at length been standardized is so trite as to be almost trite. So much thought, so much study by engineers of the highest ability and, finally, so much money have been expended to perfect the modern "common carrier" that the day of the startling or radical innovation may safely be said to have passed. Revolutionary changes, such as that which substituted the shaft and bevel gear for the chain as a general medium of power transmission are not to be expected. The era of minor adjustments to meet conditions determined by experience has arrived. It is a period of refinement. Likewise it is a period of sameness.

Freak Features Absent.

In spite of these basic facts, there are a number of specific tendencies of motor car construction and design which mark the show of 1913. Some of them are positive and others negative; some mark the adoption of certain features, while others are notable because they show that indications of last year have not been followed and that the expected, as usual, has not happened. Most noteworthy, perhaps, among these expectations that have not materialized, is the widespread adoption of the sliding valve, or Knight, type of engine.

The coming of this kind of motor has accomplished one marked service, nevertheless, and has thus indirectly lifted up to the expectations for it. It has focused the attention of motor designers on a somewhat neglected part of the mechanism, the poppet valves. It has forced them to concentrate their attention on silent valve operation.

Roads Responsible for "Six."

American road conditions are in great measure responsible for the constantly increasing favor of the six-cylinder motor. Its flexible character is especially appreciated on roads where humps and "thank you ma'ams" are frequent and familiar factors. A surface of this nature means that brakes must be frequently applied, and progress is often a succession of startings up and slowings down rather than the smooth flight without touch of gear or brake which is possible on countless long stretches in Europe. It is in this constantly varied progress that the six-cylinder shines, and it deserves for this reason the growing esteem in which it is held. Sixes galore are in the 1913 show, and it may be said without exaggeration that a great majority of the leading makers are showing at least one chassis fitted with this type of engine.

For two seasons, at least, it has seemed that no term "complete equipment" has really meant more than complete. All sorts of accessories and luxuries have been included in the purchase price of cars in order to tempt the "prospect" into becoming a customer. There have been differences of opin on in regard to the wisdom of this practice, but on the whole it has seemed to justify itself. The buyer of motor cars is keen about having the latest thing. With some this becomes almost a mania, but it applies in a greater or lesser extent to all, and it is safely predicted from the indications of the show now open that 1913 will out-Herod Herod for completeness of motor car fittings.

A Cool Proposition.

Harking back to the days of Denis Papin with his powder-driven piston combustion engine, is a scheme recently proposed by a Texan, to drive a motor by nothing less than nitro-glycerine. The fact that the fuel is not to be pure nitroglycerine, somewhat mitigates the first feeling of sympathy for the inventor as one whom the gods would destroy. The explosive is to be used in a solution of gasoline, but even so few motorists will envy the happy individual who drives the seat of honor at the inventor's right hand on the trial trip of this exuberant device.

Prize Contest to Name Case Racers Interests Many

Many freak names have been applied to the racing cars of various automobile factories since the sport of eating space became a popular pastime.

It remained for Luther Disbrow to go a step farther than any one of his predecessors. After carefully scrutinizing all the fet applications given various racing creations, the little New York driver was at a loss for a time to know just what to call his 300-horsepower machine.

M. C. Meigs of the J. I. Case Company, with whom Disbrow had a contract to drive Case machines in the big road and speed events, was visiting at the home of the little daredevil at Richmond Hill, Long Island, one Sunday afternoon. Disbrow, Sr., the father of the speed eater, raised to Meigs that many years ago he was the personal friend of the wonderful man who had founded the great Case corporation and whose name the institution still bears. At that time Mr. Case was campaigning in America the greatest harness horse of the day. It bore the name of "Jay-Eye-See" in the harness world.

At the time of which Mr. Disbrow, Sr., spoke the pneumatic sulky was an entirely new thing, and there were, so far as the records show only two in existence. Mr. Case approached Mr. Disbrow who also was campaigning a string of harness horses and asked if he could borrow the pneumatic tire sulky, which Mr. Disbrow had just purchased. While admitting it would probably result in one of his horses losing a record or two, Mr. Disbrow kindly turned over to J. I. Case the sulky for the afternoon.

Jay-Eye-See, was hitched to it and the world's record was broken at a clip better than 2:10.

Mr. Meigs was so impressed that he suggested the name of Jay-Eye-See for the big, powerful car. And that the name proved a wise selection was evident from the way it was remarked about generally by the entire automobile world.

The new racing cars being built by the J. I. Case Company at Racine, will have unusual names, and the method through which they will be derived will be a contest in which a prize will be offered for the driver or mechanic or employe of the Case automobile factory who offers the best suggestion.

Forty Car Builders Adopt Gray & Davis Electric Starters

In looking over the cars at the show one is impressed with the predominance of electric starting devices. This type of starter is on a majority of cars. The Gray & Davis six-volt electric starter seems to be very popular with manufacturers. Gray & Davis report that more than forty car builders have adopted Gray & Davis products for 1913 equipment.

The Gray & Davis electric starting system is connected with the flywheel by gears, and the instant the pedal is pressed the starting motor drives the flywheel and crank shaft and keeps turning until the engine "picks up." The starting motor then automatically ceases to operate. Two minutes after the engine has been started the current required for the operation is replaced in the battery.

The system which the company manufactures comprises starting motor, dynamo for starting and lighting system battery, combination lighting switch and junction box, ammeter, automatic cutout lighting wire and startig cable.

BIG DEMAND FOR THE COLE CAR ON MOTORISTS' PART

One of the exasperating features of the automobile trade is to be deluged with orders for some particular type of car only to have the factory inform the dealer that they are so far behind the orders that they are unable to deliver them.

This is the case of the four-cylinder, fifty-horsepower Cole cars in roadster-four and five-passenger models. This powerful car sold like the proverbial hot cakes, and before the New Year set in C. E. & H. J. Habich Company, the distributors for this line in Massachusetts and Rhode Island, had sold their allotment for the year.

Everybody seeks the unobtainable, especially in motor cars, and since the Habich brothers announced that the model fifty allotment was all sold out they have been besieged by a score or more people who want to purchase this type of car. This would indicate that not all of the motorists are strong for the six-cylinder type.

TIRE MAKERS KEEP PACE WITH AUTO PROGRESS

Superintendent Ludington of the Fisk Rubber Company tells of marked progress.

In an interesting interview recently G. A. Ludington, superintendent of the Fisk Rubber Company of Chicopee Falls, Mass., said:

"Who outside of the rubber industry has any idea of the headway which has been made in the manufacture of automobile tires and the difference in construction of the tire today from that of ten or even five years ago?

"Anyone can see the remarkable changes made in automobile building during the last decade but he forgets that the tire has had to keep pace with the car. Ten years back there were few automobiles that exceeded 2,000 pounds in weight and their possible speed was rarely above fifty miles an hour. Today the speed maniac races along at anything up to 100 miles an hour and the modern tire had to meet that possibility. The 2,000 pound car of yesterday has been replaced by the sumptuous 5,000 pound touring car of today. The tire gives better service in spite of the additional weight than ever before.

"The rule of thumb method has given way entirely to a scientific principle and it is safe to say that there are few manufactured products that receive anything like the same strict supervision as do those of the tire industry today."

Proper Position for Lock Nut.

When a thick nut and a thin one are put on the same bolt, one nut acting as a lock or jam-nut, it is the thickest nut that should be put on top. The reason is that when the last nut is screwed home hard it takes the bulk of the load, pulling up the slack of the thread of the first nut, which thus has less of the load to carry.

Poetic Justice.

Having killed two Vancouver citizens by careless driving of their automobiles, two young chauffeurs were given novel sentences by Mr. Justice Clement in a Vancouver court. On condition that the judge give them their liberty the young men, who were just twenty years of age, took oath that they would devote themselves during the next three years to the support of the widows and children of their victims.

REST IS JUST AS ESSENTIAL TO US AS FOOD TO EAT

"Six days shalt thou labor and on the seventh rest," was the command of the greatest lawgiver the world has ever known," said John Beasley Webb, the nerve specialist from London, England. This law still holds good both morally and physically.

"In order that the nerves and organs of the human body may work in complete harmony, rest is as essential as food and light. Nowadays the trouble is that after the constant mental and physical strain of the six working days, when Sunday comes restful recreation is utterly impossible. This causes nervous debility, an ailment which was formerly restricted to old men and women, but now is extremely prevalent among even the youngest of us.

"Scientists are claiming that this ailment, which is fast becoming a national peril, may be completely wiped out by the new tonic, Tona Vita.

"The many general symptoms that can denote nervous debility can be seen by the different symptoms that sufferers have laid claim to, among others: Tiring very easily; a feeling of dizziness after any unaccustomed exertion; a poor and fitful appetite; being extremely cranky and sensitive; magnifying the smallest troubles or a general run down feeling.

"Tona Vita is handled in Boston ... [illegible]

PILGRIMS GET GOING RIGHT
HOT FIGHT FOR POSITIONS

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

ATHENS, Ga., March 10.—This will be a week of hard grinding work for the Boston Nationals squad, weather permitting. Up to last night, though the weather had maintained a chilly aspect, there had been no sign of rain. But a drizzle early today made Manager Stallings do some guessing.

Hugh Stallings is now ready to push his men to the limit. With the soreness all gone except for the recent arrivals there will be no excuse for hanging back. Not that there have been any laggards here. While the recruits are joining a tall end club, they are in the big leagues for the moment, and they are all anxious to stick.

There are candidates for every position except that which Captain Bill Sweeney holds a mortgage on so it is up to every candidate to make Stallings believe he is the right man for the other place es.

CATCHER BROWN HOPES TO WIN PLACE.

Drummond Brown, the Pacific Coast catcher, who is the latest recruit to arrive, came with cap, belt, shoes, stockings, mitt, shin guards and chest protector, but neglected to pack a uniform. The club is rather short of uniforms but Trainer Jim Neary rigged him out somehow and he was ready for light exercise. He had not played since Christmas.

Brown is a well built fellow who played with the Vernon club last year and comes very highly recommended. It is believed that Stallings got his dope of Brown from Bob Sharpe, the old Boston first baseman who managed the Oakland club last season.

Bud thinks Brown is a world better and Stallings is inclined to the same belief, although he has not seen him work and is going empty on hearsay. The other Coast players with the squad, however, say that Brown will have to go faster than he ever did before to beat out Bert Whaling as first string catcher of the Boston club.

From all accounts Barden, who up to the arrival of the Coast players, was looked upon as the mainstay of the club behind the bat, will have to take a back seat when Brown and Whaling get going. However, it would be well to wait awhile and see just how the recruits pan out. It will be the last of the week before either of these boys will be able to show all they have up their sleeve.

Well Supplied With Catchers.

At any rate the club seems well fortified with backstops. There are six of them here and most of them are above the average in ability, but it is doubtful if the club will care to carry more than three of them on the payroll.

The only man under reserve, who is not accounted for is Walter Dickson, the pitcher. Apparently Stallings does not care whether Mr. Dickson reports or not. He has got good prospects here in Janes, Strand, Gervias, Hogue and Thompson, besides the regulars of last season. Noyes, the Northwestern University pitcher, will not report until after graduating in June.

The boys spend a very quiet Sunday. Bino laws prevail in most parts of the South these days. There were no moving pictures to amuse the men or was there any performance at the theatre. Some of the players took a long walk in the afternoon and some went to church. Others sneaked up to the meeting room and played cards.

Secretary Gibson took a walk with mine host O'Callaghan who showed him one of the sights of Athens, a second-hand coffin. Gibson took one look at it and hurried away. Mine host did not realize that he was showing the object to the newly appointed secretary of a talked ball team. The connection between tallenders and dead cows is something Mr. O'Callaghan missed entirely.

Will Keep Men Hustling.

But that's all right. The Boston Nationals are tallenders until the season opens and then they start a clean slate. It is thought here that Stallings will keep the enthusiasm at high pitch in the club and that it may be possible to keep the team some distance from last place in the coming race.

If colored persons were allowed in the big leagues, it is possible that Stallings would engage the head porter of the hotel here as coacher on the side lines. The porter, when announcing the departure of the bus emits an ear splitting yell in a voice that can be heard a mile away.

Strangers flee in terror when they hear it for the first time. "Some nerve, that," remarked Bill Sweeney to Rastus the elevator boy. "Triumph," observed Rastus with a sneer, "I uster have that job an I kin make no noise than he kin." Jealousy, rank jealousy.

THE BOSTON BOWLERS' BUDGET

By J. P. MURPHY

BOSTON, MONDAY, MARCH 10, 1913

COMMENT.

This is the final issue of the Bowlers' Budget for the season of 1912-1913. The season is fast coming to a close. Both writer finds fewer leagues in action and with baseball training in order, it would be impossible to devote enough space to publish the Budget.

In the short time that the Budget has been in circulation, it has made numerous friends among the Greater Boston Bowlers, and has gained recognition for its comprehensiveness in covering the bowling field. The Budget has been lauded by very prominent in local bowling circles and they consider it the best thing that ever happened to some Boston bowlers.

The writer wishes to thank the league secretaries and others who have given their earnest aid in making the Budget a success and it would only be his wish that he could meet each one in person. It is the intention of the writer to issue the Budget again each week next season as has been customary.

It is almost needless to mention that the AMERICAN will continue to print bowling news of interest as long as the season lasts. The AMERICAN will contain the best and most complete accounts and happenings of the annual National Duck and Candle Pin Congress. Secretaries who will be held at the Carruth Alleys late next month and early in May and which will mark the close of the 1912-1913 season.

J. LANE'S TEAM WINS.

After a very interesting race J. Lane's team won first place in the South Boston Memorial League by a margin of six points over the Condrens. The individual prizes were divided as follows; High average, Lambert 91.10; high three strings, Hadley 297; high single, Mitchell 126.

Porter is slowly pulling away from "Spock" Ampacher in the A. O. U. W. League and it looks as though he will now carry away the much-coveted honor of individual champion. Last week Porter did 312, while the diminutive German was below the 300 mark.

"Shifty" Graves has a nifty bunch of pins. They rimmed the candles considerable over 1,500 in a special game. Frank had a 14- as his share and incidentally established a new league record for a single.

Alliston and Mt. Benedict clash Tuesday night and Pere Marquette and Jamaica Plain men Wednesday night. These are the four leaders. Fast watch for the scores.

Alexander, who was formerly proprietor of the Old Colony alleys, Dorchester, and down Summer street those days, as much put out and bewildered as the day he took his train to Egypt.

All of the I. O. O. F. M. th, fans" are waiting anxiously for the twentieth of the month to come, as this is the date of the next battle between Jamaica and Boston lodges and it will be the last contest of the season. Rotes is now leading by four points and Jamaica has an edge in pins.

It was interesting to see O'Brien and Gill discussing their rights Friday night in the Columbus Club League. One wanted chalk on the corner of the alleys and the other wanted moisture. Each interfered with the other man's bowling.

Ambrose of the Newtowns team was the best roller in the Newton Boston pin series with 330.

M. C. O. F. BANQUET.

With the closing of the M. C. O. F. League coming soon, the members of that organization are looking forward to the first annual banquet which will be held at the Quincy House on Thursday, April 10. Arrangements are in charge of President John F. Cody who is doing his utmost in order to make the affair a success.

QUERY.

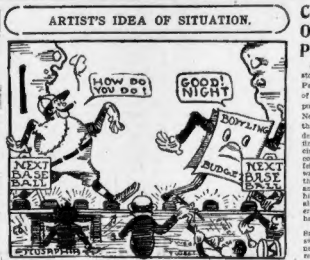
Union, Lowell, Mass.
March 8, 1913.

To the Bowling Editor,
BOSTON AMERICAN.

Dear Sir—What is the least number of pins to be rolled to attain the total of 900 in one string? This is to decide a bet.
Very truly yours,
R. Griffin.

Answer—To attain a perfect score of 900 in one string, 12 strikes must be made, consuming 12 balls.

ARTIST'S IDEA OF SITUATION.



BETWEEN STRINGS

Bill Gregg, who has done much to keep Cadis in the front in the City League race this season has given up the game for this season. Bill finds that he has been devoting more time to bowling than he should have on and finds business too pressing to continue further.

In Gregg, Casino loses one of its leading and most popular bowlers in the City League. Gregg always gave the best that was in him. His average of 94 will show this.

The annual banquet of the Charlestown Bowling League will take place some time after Easter. Plans are now under way to arrange for the event.

There were several of the boys in the Stationers' League who hit for candles for big scores last Thursday. George of Barry Reds garnered the largest count with a total of 320.

Allston of the K. of C. League pulled down the team single string record with 542. This was due greatly to Dr. Crowley, who had his bowling down on and topped 14- as his share and incidentally established a new league record for a single.

Alliston and Mt. Benedict clash Tuesday night and Pere Marquette and Jamaica Plain men Wednesday night. These are the four leaders. Fast watch for the scores.

Alexander, who was formerly proprietor of the Old Colony alleys, Dorchester, and down Summer street those days, as much put out and bewildered as the day he took his train to Egypt.

All of the I. O. O. F. M. th, fans" are waiting anxiously for the twentieth of the month to come, as this is the date of the next battle between Jamaica and Boston lodges and it will be the last contest of the season. Rotes is now leading by four points and Jamaica has an edge in pins.

It was interesting to see O'Brien and Gill discussing their rights Friday night in the Columbus Club League. One wanted chalk on the corner of the alleys and the other wanted moisture. Each interfered with the other man's bowling.

Ambrose of the Newtowns team was the best roller in the Newton Boston pin series with 330.

Don McPhee, manager of the Casino alleys, has gone to the Cape for a month's vacation. Don's many friends are hoping that his rest will put his throat back in good condition again, as they miss the inspiring sound of his voice very much.

Captain Carney of Dedham increased his average by finishing up with 127 for a total of 810. Rines of Mt. Benedict totaled 814 for his share of four points from Everett.

Warren Brown and Andy Armstrong attribute the defeat of Boylston by Cadis, which incidentally lost them first place to a mechanical arrangement which, when suspended, makes a noise like a "goat" and which was passed back and forth among the unsuccessful rollers. Both Brown and Armstrong, just as they started to get their arms, would hesitate to listen to see where the goat was. Sam Paige was the "kid" who owned the top.

Captain Cronin again went better than 300 at the Columbus Club last week. The week previous he toppled the maples for 330.

The Ward Special of the Stationers' League certainly is a combination of lofty pin hitters. They treated Carter's ink stand to a pretty coat of whitewash after the regular games.

"Big Joe" Jacobson has won new honors. His three string of 352 was the best individual work of the Suburban League last week. Anyway, Joe has to make good for he's a regular now.

Miss Hesterton and Miss Vincent entertained a large group of "dears" at the Boylston alleys in a special match game. Miss Hesterton rolled 302 in three strings while Miss Vincent got 162 for a single, and men folks stood by and gazed and wondered.

Three members of the Boston Lodge of the Manchester Unity, I. O. O. F. Leagues all hit for the same total of 260. A peculiar coincidence, indeed.

George Felton who spends his days and nights in either a bowling alley or a billiard parlor led the individual in the Tuesday last week with 329. George is also cutting up some at the White Bear.

Christopher Tells Own Story About Poehler Match.

John Christopher, of the Boston team, who was to have met Paul Poehler in a special match of twenty strings for a good sized purse and the championship of New England last month, claims that he has not been given a fair deal by Poehler's backers. In the first place, he says that whoever circulated the report that Poehler could have pulled down the forfeit money when he (Christopher) was sick, either was careless with the truth or else does not know anything of the contract between himself and Poehler. Christopher also said that he has tried on several occasions to meet Poehler but has never been successful.

Christopher was in the office on Saturday. His right eye was badly swollen, caused by an attack of neuralgia, from which he has also recovered. In discussing the much heralded match, Christopher said:

"I am not being used right by some of Poehler's backers according to press reports. I have been from friends of mine and disinterested parties that some of Poehler's followers have said that I have been talking around Boston and Maynard telling how I would like to meet Poehler.

"This is entirely untrue and I fail to see what reason there possibly could be for talking about me in such a manner. I realize the position in which Poehler is placed but I am willing to meet him on even terms as his studies for two nights. He bowls in the City League every week and has engaged in a special match that I know of. If he has time to do this, I see no reason why we should not meet the same.

"Since the match was arranged—that is, before I took ill—numerous times to meet Poehler. I also tried to get him on the phone on each time I have been unsuccessful. In fact, I have not been able to get him on the phone at any time since we met to arrange for the match. I will, however, or at least I expect to see him Wednesday evening when our team meets Chauncy.

"I know I can beat Poehler, in fact, I believe I could defeat him in my present condition, and am able to see but little out of my right eye. Some of the places where part of the match was rolled I am not able to see, but this difficulty could see nothing but Poehler until I went down there and looked over the ground on the different. Then they took a different view of things.

"Another thing I would like to explain is that Poehler could not have rolled on the Arlington Alleys when I was sick and he knows that the forfeit money cannot be posted down in case of sickness or misfortune. Every one knows that I am as true and dare anybody who is acquainted with the facts of the case to deny it."

DONOVAN VS. PRISCO.

Unusual interest is being shown in the match between Dan Donovan of the Bunker Hill Club and Tony Prisco of the Commercial, of the Charlestown Bowling League, which will be finished on Carruth's alleys Thursday evening, March 21. The match will roll ten strings.

MacPherson, the youngster who speeds it up in the daily games at Carruth's alleys, carried away high individual honors in the Bunker Hill League.

Dennie Berran to Play in Outfield for Springfield

Dennie Berran, the Roxbury boy, whose rise in the professional baseball world has been rapid, will play in the outfield for the Springfield team of the Eastern Association this year. Berran will report to Springfield in a few weeks, and it is believed that he will experience little difficulty in gaining a permanent position in the outfield.

Berran's first experience in the profession field was made in the Nova Scotian League. He immediately made good, both as a pitcher and as an outfielder. His rise was rapid, and he attracted the attention of the White Sox scouts, who signed him up. He played but a few games with Chicago and, although he made a fine impression, Callahan thought that a little more seasoning would do him good, and he was drafted to the Three I League.

He played thirteen games with the Dubuque club, and batted and fielded well. This year, however, he chose to seek a field nearer home, and although given several flattering offers he finally accepted a position with Springfield.

HARVARD PLANS TO HOLD SPRING WORK FOR FOOTBALL MEN

Spring football practice at Harvard is likely to begin next week. A meeting of the whole varsity squad of last year, of the second team squad and of the freshmen who won their numerals, together with the coaches and managers of all three teams, has been called by Captain Storer for Friday morning, when a smoker will be held in the Varsity Club.

It is expected that announcement of the plans for the Spring drill will be made at this meeting, and there is a likelihood that the coaching situation will then be cleared up by some announcement from Mr. Haughton or the football committee.

Up to now the only action that has been made public is the formation of the schedule for next year, which was done by the co-operation of the manager and the football committee.

ALL-STAR CANADIAN SEVEN TO PLAY IN GAMES AT ARENA

Winnipeg's All Stars, comprising the leading players of the five teams of the Winnipeg City Amateur League, who are on tour of the eastern part of Canada, will visit Boston this week to play two games at the Arena.

Next Thursday night the All Stars will play Ringer Hall of Montreal, and on Saturday night the Boston Athletic Association.

Three of the men with the Canadian team have played in Boston before, coming here last season with the Winnipeg Victorias. They are Hemmings, Rae, Chauncy Bawlf and Francis Caldwell. The other members of the All Stars are equally as clever. It is said.

LAWRENCE ELEVEN TO BATTLE WINCHESTER

Lawrence and the Manchester, N. H., High School football managements have made a two-year agreement for games to be played on Columbus Day. The first game will be played next Fall at Lawrence, and in 1914 the teams will meet at Manchester, N. H.

FINN FORCED OUT OF BIG RACE BY SORE SHINS

By THOMAS J. HALPIN.
(Quarter-mile champion of United States and Canada.)

To the many athletic followers in New York, who had the opportunity of witnessing the indoor championships, the fact that Kolehmainen was forced to retire was a great surprise as they could see no reason for his withdrawal from the race.

The trouble with the wonderful Finn was that he was troubled with sore shins. This soreness was due to the fact that Kolehmainen insists on training himself and in training he also insists on running every day. The result was that, owing to his running daily on the hard floors, he became afflicted with sore shins, a disease that indoor runners dread for the suffering is frightful, although the result is not as harmful as one is lead to believe.

It was the first appearance of the athletes from across the Atlantic as a member of the Irish-American Club, but Lawson Robertson said after the games that Kolehmainen will be all right in a week or two. The Finn's retirement from a championship race was a revelation to most of the spectators, as he is regarded as a marvel and the followers of sport in New York have forgotten the fact that he is a human being.

TED MEREDITH, the wonderful athlete from the University of Pennsylvania, is scheduled to start in a special 600-yard race against Daresnort and Lindberg at the Missouri Athletic Club's annual games on next Saturday evening. Daveaport was to have been a starter in the 600-yard indoor championships, but illness prevented him from making the trip and it will be interesting to note how Meredith fares against the Western cracks.

Providence Grays to Start for the South This Week

PROVIDENCE, March 10.—"Will Bill" Donovan, the guide of the Providence International League baseball team, is in this city and has started the work of building an aggregation which he expects to be a winner. There will be only a few of the old guard left when the Grays get into action.

There are some hold-outs, and today Donovan announced that those who had not signed contracts will not be taken South when the club leaves here the week for the Durham training field.

President Vandusen is anxious to give Providence a good ball club this year, and he thinks an almost entirely new outfit of young blood is about the right thing. All the players are ordered to be at Durham by next Saturday.

CATHEDRAL A. A. TO HOLD TEN-MILE RUN APRIL 12

The fifth annual ten-mile cross-country run of the Cathedral Y. M. C. A. will be held on the afternoon of April 12 over the same course as in previous years, starting at the clubhouse, Union Park street, to Harrison avenue, to Massachusetts avenue, to Columbia road, to Blue Hill avenue, to Morton street and return via the same route.

This year a special effort is being made by the committee to secure entries from men in New York and Canada that send men to compete in the B. A. A. Marathon. Many athletes who enter this classical event compete in the Cathedral race as a tryout. The race is sanctioned by the N. E. A. A. A. U. and is open to registered athletes only. Entries close on Wednesday, April 9, with the manager, Terrance D. Gorton, No. 70 East Newton street.

RED SOX START 1913 WORK
28 IN HOT SPRINGS SQUAD

By L. R. MURDOCH

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 10.—With all but two members of his ball team on the job, Jake Stahl began here at Majestic Park for the season of 1913 today. He had his men out at ten o'clock this morning, under orders to work until noon and to return for more at two p. m. They expect to continue this daily this week, finishing at four o'clock.

The absentees are Ray Collins, who only recently signed his contract, and recruit outfielder George E. Walsh, who is with a sick father at Fall River.

The squad was completed with these two exceptions when the Eastern contingent, after a long, wild trip from Boston, arrived here late yesterday. They were two hours late at Cincinnati and missed connection on the Louisville & Nashville.

STARTED IN PURSUIT OF EXPRESS.

After a hasty meal, an engine was attached to their car and they made a flying trip to Louisville, in an attempt to overhaul the express train. They lost it there, but caught it two hours after bank and give him a job cashiering as a starter."

midnight at Bowling Green, Ky., after shooting along more than a hundred miles in less than two hours, which is going some in these parts.

The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific connecting train was held up fifteen minutes to give the world's champions time to snatch a breakfast yesterday morning, much to the disgust of the engineer. Even then one man, Joe Burns, who owns a hotel at Taunton and is a "Fan" of the old school, was lost.

"Duffy" Farrell, carrying about 204 pounds, speeded a couple of hundred yards in about twenty seconds, and just caught the last car as it sped out of the station. The "Duke of Marlboro" was pronounced nearly fit after this effort. He did not turn a hair, but leaped aboard, puffing like the locomotive. Burns was without an overcoat or other equipment when he lost the train. He arrived in Hot Springs three hours late.

On this train the sox found H. W. Mahan of Chicago, father of Mrs. Stahl, Mrs. Stahl's sister and "Duffy" Lewis, who was on his way from the Coast. Mr. Mahan was eager to learn about the condition of the team. He gave the party the first news of Tris Speaker's prime condition. Speaker had visited Mr. Mahan in Chicago two weeks before.

"He told me," said the Sox manager's father-in-law, "that if Boston won another world's championship he intended to go into the banking business. I told him that if they did I would start a third

"Mr. Mahan, who a year ago was coaxing his son-in-law to stick to baseball and to keep out of baseball against the arguments of Mcaleer, who went to Chicago four times to combat Mahan's arguments and Jake Stahl's disinclination to return to the diamond, is today a baseball "hug" and a Sox rooter. His enthusiasm may be measured by his talk with Speaker and his dropping his business to run down here to watch the Sox in training.

Stahl himself is an enthusiastic now as a schoolboy. A year ago he took the managerial job with some misgivings, and his mind was about as much on business as on baseball. Moreover, a year's layoff had made his slow and heavy. This year he is fitter than ever before in his career. You only does he intend to stick to baseball as long as there is anything worth while in it for him, but he intends to play first base in every one of the 154 games this season, barring accidents. Candidates for Jake's job, who were fairly numerous last Fall, have all taken to the woods.

Lewis No Baseball Coach.

Instead of Banker Mahan converting Stahl to business, Stahl has converted Mahan to baseball, and Stahl has made a bigger hit at home, probably than if he had J. Pierpont Morgan backed into a siding.

Which is a mighty good argument for baseball versus business which should be used to good effect by our friends, the office boys, next month.

"Duffy" Lewis promptly set at rest the story of his coaching engagement at Leland Stanford University when he joined the party at Memphis. Lewis said:

"Some newspaper must have sent out the report that I intended to stay there this season. You could not coax me out of baseball as long as I can hold a job. I only ran down to Stanford University for a few days. I got along all right until they asked me for some pointers about sliding. It is possible, though, I may go back there about January 1 for the Winter season."

Anybody who has ever studied some of "Duffy" Lewis' plunges into the bases will understand his lack of self-esteem in that respect. Lewis was told that Stahl intended to establish a sliding pit, like McGraw is understood to have at Marlin today, where the Giants are supposed to have learned their base stealing.

Well, if what I saw of their base stealing last Fall is all they learned from that sliding pit, we don't need waste our time with one," put in Heinie Wagner, going to Lewis' rescue.

Players in Great Condition.

Tris Speaker and Harry Hooper beat the eastern party to the Springs by a couple of hours, and joined the crowd that went to the train to meet them. Clyde Engle and Olaf Henriksen, who are traveling by boat from Boston to New Orleans, and thence up the Mississippi to Memphis, also preceded the main party. They were supposed to have been lost, but it turned out that they were seeing the sights down South before the time when ordered to report.

The squad looked in better shape than any baseball party that ever visited Hot Springs. It was decided at the Hotel Eastman, where the Sox are staying, and which will be the home of their adversaries, the Pirates, too, that every man looked as fit as when they finished the season. This was the comment of old timers who have watched the baseball players as they have come here for the past fifteen years for Spring conditioning.

The party now consists of Wood, Hall, O'Brien, Bedient, Martins, Ainsworth, Mossley, Foster, Leonard, Brandt and Watkins, pitchers; Carrigan, Cady, Thomas and Nunamaker, catchers; Stahl, Engle, Carstrom, Scott, Janvrin, Yerkes, Wagner, Gardner and Hall, infielders; Speaker, Hooper, Lewis and Henriksen, outfielders. The squad totals twenty-eight ball players with two to hear from.

MATTY BALDWIN MEETS WOOD AT SALEM TONIGHT

By JACK CONWAY.

MATTY BALDWIN vs. Ray Wood! This is the magnet which will cause a big crowd of boxing "fans" to invade Salem this evening. These two rugged lightweights are scheduled to clash in a twelve round contest and as both boys are willing, aggressive fighters the contest should be crowded with action from the moment that the gong sounds at the opening of the first session until the "go" comes to an end.

There is hardly any use in devoting a great deal of space to Baldwin. The Charlestown boy is the best known boxer in New England today and his ring triumphs are well known to local devotees of the mitt game.

Manly has been made a favorite for tonight's bout and I believe that he will win the decision but Wood is sure to give him a thrilling battle as he is a fighter from the word go. The Bunker Hill pride arrived in Boston yesterday and he is in condition for a hard battle. He said:

"I will surely vanquish Wood and will then be ready for a match with Willie Ritchie, the lightweight champion whom I have already defeated once, and "Harlem" Tommy Murphy who gave Ad Wolgast such a corking good fight recently. I am now negotiating with Western promoters for those two matches and I may be able to give out some red hot news within a few days.

The McMahon brothers of New York have also promised to use me against Joe Rivers in the near future."

Wood is in grand condition and is confident of gaining a victory. He proved that he is a good boxer when he won from Battling Nelson and held Tommy O'Keefe to a draw.

Three slashing six round preliminaries have been arranged. They are as follows: Frankie Mack vs. Young Clarke; Johnny Boyle vs. Eddie Kenney; Johnny McMann vs. Eddie Sawyer.

THE new Lenox A. C. will conduct its initial boxing show at Gloucester this evening in the City Hall. Joes Coes of the South End and Cy Goodwin, formerly of this city but who now resides in Plymouth, will clash in the main bout. These boys should put up a good tussle.

Coes is quite a favorite with Gloucester fistic followers. He appeared in Gloucester several weeks ago, and although the decision was rendered against him in his bout with Jimmy Quinlan, he won a host of admirers by his clever work. There were many who witnessed the Coes-Quinlan bout who were of the opinion that Coes was entitled to a draw at the least.

JOE MANDOT and Leach Cross will furnish the fireworks in a ten round contest at New Orleans tonight. Both men are sweet punchers and if they decide to mix things the spectators should witness some rare sport.

* * *

THIS amateur boxers will be given another opportunity to show their skill at the amateur shoot of the Riverside Boat Club which will be held in Cyprus Hall, Cambridge, on Friday evening. Besides the bouts in the open classes there will also be two special contests.

* * *

BOMBADIER WELLS will try and sink "Gunboat" Smith whom he meets in a ten round entertainment in Madison Square Garden, New York, on Friday evening. Smith is only a fair heavyweight and unless he has improved several hundred per cent. during the past few weeks he will receive a sound trouncing. He will probably think that he has been hit with a broadside of shot and shell when Wells gets going at top speed.

OSCAR (KID) LLOYD, the Beverly lad who recently entered the professional ranks, has made good with a vengeance. This boy is but sixteen years of age and yet he is able to hold his own with the leading 115 pound boxers in New England.

Lloyd is a fast, shifty youngster and as game as they make them. He is under the management of Hector Mclnnis of South Boston, and the latter is confident that his latest protege will make good in the ring and that he will not have to sidestep the best of them.

BLANCO IS VICTOR.

HAVANA, March 10.—R. Blanco of Havana defeated A. Kupchik of New York in the first game of their match here.

Expect Largest Entry Yet in Big Bowling Tourney

The seventh annual tournament of the National Duck and Candlepin Bowling Congress, which will be held at Carruth's new alleys, Hanover street, April 28-May 7, inclusive, will be the most successful in the history of the organization. There is every indication that the entry list will be the largest in the past five years, the period during which the closed list with single entry has been enforced.

Last year certain prize guarantees went into effect and they will also hold good in the coming percentage tournament. First prize in the individual candlepin class shall be no less than $50. For five-men teams it shall be no less than $100. In the duckpin events the individual guarantee is $85 and that for five-men is $75.

There will be the usual large candlepin entry, but the duckpin event is the growing one, and there is no question but what more duckpin teams will be in action this year than in any past contest. Sanctioned bowlers will have alleys that never had a shade of polish, being freshly installed, and they will have an opportunity to show if the surface is superior to that which is polished.

SPORTING BRIEFS

While no date has yet been announced for the third Arlington-Melrose hockey game, it is probable that March 19 will be selected.

Kolehmainen Laid Up.

NEW YORK, March 10.—Hannes Kolehmainen, the Finnish distance runner, has acquired "shin splints" from pounding on indoor tracks, and will be compelled to rest, except for an exhibition race, March 27, for several months.

Carey Signs with Pirates.

PITTSBURGH, March 10.—Outfielder Max Carey, who had been holding out for more salary, has signed a contract with President Dreyfus, the terms of which were not made public and will join the Pirates at their training quarters at Hot Springs, Ark.

Havana Wants Chess Tourney.

HAVANA, Cuba, March 10.—Because of the success which attended the recently-ended chess tournament, plans are in the making to hold an international chess competition here next December.

Horsemen Off for Jamestown.

CHARLESTON, S. C., March 10.—With only eighteen days remaining in the racing meet here horsemen are already planning departure for new tracks. Most of them are arranging to go to Jamestown, where the Norfolk meet begins immediately after the close here. The Palmetto Derby, one of several major events left, has attracted only a mediocre entry list.

Wickham Recovers; After Thorpe.

LONDON, March 10.—Bert Wickham, the famous English athlete, who was run down by a taxicab in this city and injured, has recovered and is ready, he says, to fulfill any engagements. Wickham is still anxious to arrange a match of all round athletic competitions with Jim Thorpe or Martin Sheridan.

Cable Chess Team Announced.

PRINCETON, March 10.—The American college chess team, which, on April 15, here in Alexander Hall, will begin its cable chess match with Oxford and Cambridge, will be composed of two Columbia players, two from Pennsylvania, one from Princeton, and one from either Harvard or Yale.

Brickley Shuns Baseball.

Charley Brickley, by his remarkably rapid recovery from a strained leg tendon, has started track work again on Soldiers' Field at Harvard.

Brodie is Rutgers' Coach.

BALTIMORE, March 10.—Walter (Steve) Brodie, a member of the famous Oriole team when it won three pennants in succession, and prior to that a Boston National player, will leave the city tomorrow to take up his duties as coach of Rutgers College.

Giants Mourn Death of Pitcher Hanley at Camp in Texas

MARLIN, Tex., March 10.—The heavy hand of death was laid on Manager McGraw's big baseball family early when Tom Hanley, a young pitcher who had shown much promise, succumbed to the effects of an operation for acute appendicitis performed Saturday afternoon.

Hanley died yesterday morning in a physician's office across the street from the hotel. He was conscious for about three hours before death and bravely awaited the end after a priest had administered the last rites of the church.

Shortly after Hanley died Wilbert Robinson telephoned the news to McGraw, who ordered that no expense be spared in sending the body back to the dead youth's home in Marietta, O.

Hanley was very popular with his teammates, to whom the news of his death was a severe shock.

Indeed, when Miss Madeleine Cornell, a little tot of 5, drew the winning number from the barrel in the window and it was displayed to the throng, he could scarcely credit the news. It was all true, and this handsome present becomes his immediately without "strings" or "drawbacks."

A Bachelor's Diary

By MAX

FEBRUARY 6.—It is two days since I started to tell you, Deary, about my ride with the widow, and there isn't much to tell of what really happened. It is what might have happened, and didn't that makes my association with her both alluring and exciting.

She insinuated that I was a coward. I knew that she meant I was afraid of her. There was a look in her eyes that dared me.

"Continue," said Warning No. 17, "to act the coward."

"I confess I am far from a brave man when in your presence," I said, "but could you say woman a higher compliment?"

"Way," said she, changing the subject, "have you never married?"

The Story of His Life

Again the story of my life! I think a woman likes a man to tell her the story of his life, in the hope that he will tell her something very dreadful. She wants to be chilled and shocked, and she likes above all else to see a man sinner on his knees. Had I turned to some very black page and told the widow I had been very wicked, and was trying to be a better man, she would have twisted my confession of crime into admission that I needed the influence of a good woman like her to become brave and good and strong; that because of my sense of shame and humility I had not asked her to share my life. And she would straightway prove herself a forgiving angel by making herself my guardian and guide.

I was so sure of what she would do, that I decided to try it.

I let my head sink on my breast as one who deeply felt his sense of shame, and was silent.

"Go on," she said softly, putting her hand on my arm. You may think I hadn't begun, but she knew I had. The trouble, Diary, is that you are only a lot of pages in a book, and she is a woman, and you don't understand.

"I was weak and wilful," I said, throwing intense feelings into my voice, for I rather liked the pressure of her hand on my arm, "and young and inexperienced, and she was so much older, and so worldly wise."

I hesitated. "Go on," insisted the widow, and her hand slipped from my arm into my hand, where it remained that it might give me the sympathetic pressure of encouragement one so overwhelmed with remorse so evidently needed.

Her Sympathy

I hesitated again. Naturally I had to hesitate often, for I couldn't quite decide which of the many black crimes of my youth to confess. As I expected, she mistook my hesitation for repugnance to uncover a past so dreadful, and the sympathetic pressure of my hand became a squeeze.

The situation was extremely pleasant, Diary, and I decided to prolong it.

"No matter what you have done," said the widow in a very tender voice, "you may rest secure in my understanding and sympathy. Perhaps I can help you. You know a good woman, Max," speaking my name softly as if to apologize for using it, "can always find ways to defeat the ends of a wicked woman."

A wicked woman! I had to cough to choke back a laugh, and she mistook the cough for a half-repressed sob, and her hold on my hand became a little tighter.

No more tonight, Diary. A telephone message that a business acquaintance wants to see me in the lobby calls me away.

WHY do women love dogs?

It is certainly not through any desire to please men. A man likes to see a woman charmingly dressed and arrayed in all the rich spoils of the ferred and feathered world, and he will toil and fight to get them for her—but, however politely he may conceal his disgust, he doesn't enjoy seeing her hug a pet dog in her arms. It becomes his rival, and no man likes a rival.

Possibly that is one of the reasons for the popularity of dogs in the feminine world. It is a way that woman has of showing man that she isn't dependent upon him for affection.

But I should like to assure her, on the word of science, that she is putting up with a very poor substitute for human affection.

I am led to this subject by the perusal of a remarkable article in the March flood of Housekeeping Magazine, an article whose statements and photographs I have looked upon with growing amazement. If you want to know how completely the dog is "in society" you had better read that article, and ponder upon its pictures.

At the very head of the article stands a pet dog who will either make you shiver or h.. you with delight, according to the view that you happen to entertain of this subject. At any rate you will recognize that he is not as big and probably not as wicked as he seems.

That such creatures should have "governesses" to wait upon them, sealskin coats, silk jerseys, richly jewelled collars and anklets, costly pillows to pawn upon, especially prepared foods to whet the appetite, toilet articles, such as face sponges, delicate silver brushes, cold cream, toenail polishers, silk-lined beds worth, a hundred dollars, suites of rooms at home and special cabin accommodations when going abroad—facts like these are worth knowing because of the sidelights that they cast upon some of the aspects of the curious world that is inhabited by the "smart set."

You will agree that there must be, some reason for this dog worship. It is not the same reason that led the old Egyptians to make deities of certain animals. They had a religious superstition to mislead them, but the modern cult of dogs is based upon a less respectable ground. A single sentence written by Professor George J. Romanes, who made a special study of dogs, may throw light upon this singular subject:

"The emotional life of the dog is highly developed—more highly, indeed, than that of any other animal."

The dog has been made, by thousands of years of association with man a mirror of some phases of human character. Upon no animal has man imprinted so much of himself. But the imprint is found, almost entirely, in the emotional nature of the animal. As Mr. Rousnes elsewhere says, man has transformed the psychology of the dog.

To show one of the effects of this transformation, let me quote from the same authority: "A wolf or a fox will sustain the severest kinds of physical suffering without giving utterance to a sound, while a dog will scream when anyone accidentally treads upon his toes."

To understand the meaning of this we must remember that the dog is of the same family with the wolves, foxes and jackals.

One of the strongest, as well as strangest instincts that man has implanted in the dog is that of caste feeling. This may account for his entrance into "society." A proud and haughty dog is specially valued. Man has taught him contempt for his humbler relatives. A curious instance is given by an English writer, Mr. St. John. Speaking of his favorite retriever, he says:

"He struck up an acquaintance with a ratcatcher and his cur, thoroughly enjoying into their way of business, but the moment he saw me he instantly cut his humble friends, and denied all acquaintance with them in the most comical manner."

Hundreds of similar instances can be found recorded, and they show that the dog has learned deception as well as other things from his human instructors. They also make plain the fact that the dog's affection is only skin deep, and that he will return to his native wolfish character the moment the influence of his human environment is removed.

The dog's popularity with certain persons rests then upon two grounds: first, his excessive development of affection, and second, his aping of some of the most undesirable of human characteristics, such as pride, caste feeling, lazy self-indulgence and disregard for everything outside the interests of his own narrow circle. The pet dog is the personification of aristocracy.

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

There Is Hope Ahead.

LYSANDER JOHN APPLETON held in his hand a photograph of his daughter, Daysey Mayme, taken two years ago.

She wore no hat; her hair was combed back with a pompadour effect, and every feature was exposed to view. Lysander trembled with emotion.

"Do you suppose, mother," turning to his wife, who leaned over his shoulder, "that she looks like that today?"

"I do not know," sobbed Mrs. Appleton, taking the picture in her hand. "Two years ago! Two years since we have seen our only daughter's face."

"It is hard—oh, so hard," sobbed her husband. "Do you remember what a noble brow she had? And such fine eyebrows! Everyone always admired Daysey Mayme's eyebrows.

"Faces was a dimple near her left eye. Do you remember that dimple? Oh," Mrs. Appleton's voice broke into sobs. "Do you suppose she has that dimple yet?"

"I think I most admired her nose," said the girl's father. "Such a determined little nose it was! Do you think," turning to his wife for comfort, as every man has always done in this hour of Gethsemane, "that I will ever see that nose again?"

Mrs. Appleton in her heart doubted it. But, noble woman that she was, she would not dash her husband's hopes to the ground.

"Wait," she cried, "I will see!"

Hastily and tremulously she looked through a pile of magazines on the table, and at last came to one marked in lurid letters on the outside—"FASHIONS."

She turned page after page, her husband sharing her agitation as picture after picture failed to bring assurance. Then, at last, they were rewarded.

"Listen," she said, her voice quivering with suppressed excitement, and then she read as one who reads a reprieve:

This Spring styles in hairdressing will permit a girl to wear her hair combed back from her forehead, a decided change from the fashion of wearing the hair combed over the eyes and ears that has predominated for two years past. This effect will be aided by the new Spring hats. They will be worn far back of the head. For the past two years the devotee of fashion has worn a chapeau that covered all but her chin."

Lysander John and his wife flew into each other's arms.

"At last," they cried, "we will see our daughter's face again!"

TOO SOON TO JUDGE

A gentleman was sorely out of patience by some member of his new groom.

"Look here," he cried, in his anger, "I won't have things done in this way! Do you hear? I——"

"Shure, sur," said the groom, "Oi can't say, sorr. Oi only came here yesterday."

Hunting a Husband

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

Beatrice Is Delirious for Several Days, but Comes to Her Senses to Find Her Children Are Safe

DARKNESS—soft, blank darkness—enveloped Beatrice Minor, black oblivion through which struggled faintly dim echoes and uneasy half-meaningless cries. The crackle and hiss of flames and the crash of a falling roof and the upward flight of a million golden sparks through a tower of billowing smoke—and once again darkness.

In the Robbins home brooded a gray silence, where white-capped nurses flitted noiselessly through the gloom and where people spoke together in the low monotone of the sick room or the death chamber. Sometimes the babbling of a delirious woman echoed through the silent house, and once the sharp, quickly stifled cry of a man in agony; then silence.

One morning Beatrice Minor opened her eyes and saw bending over her the grave, gentle face of Dr. Haynes, dim and blurred like a faulty photograph. Behind him stood some one whom she knew to be Helen. Some reflection from the fire far away light of memory spread through the chaos of her mind, and she struggled weakly to rise. The doctor stepped forward, and, with a firm, cool hand on her forehead, pressed her head back upon the pillow.

"Here Are Your Children"

"You must lie still, Mrs. Minor," he said quietly. "Everything is all right, and you are getting better. But you have been very ill."

"My babies," mouned the woman. "Where are they? Oh, something terrible has been happening!"

"You have been dreaming," soothed the physician. "Here are your children close beside you."

For Helen Robbins had hurried noiselessly from the room and had brought back the little boy and girl. They now stood by the bed, pale and frightened. Beatrice looked at them for a long minute, her eyes dark and thoughtful. The silence added to the children's fear, but Jack tried to be brave.

"Now, don't cry, Jean," he whimpered, "'cause she's awful sick."

"I'm not a-goin' to cry," sobbed Jean, softly.

A faint smile flitted across the mother's face.

"Mother's getting better now, darling," she whispered. Then her eyes closed wearily.

"I must have dreamed it," she murmured, and fell asleep again.

The doctor turned to Helen, a relieved look on his face.

"The danger is past, I think. Perhaps she may never remember the details of her week's horror. We must try to keep her mind from it as much as we can, and we must all prevaricate or reply evasively if she asks about it."

He stepped to give an order to the uniformed nurse, and Helen led the two crying children from the room. But before she had passed Jean and Jack, in the company of the Robbins youngsters, were, with the blessed forgetfulness of childhood, enjoying a game of hide and seek in the forbidden recesses of the hayloft.

A half-hour after her visit to Beatrice's room Helen came face to face with Dr. Yeager in the upper hall. He was softly closing the door of a darkened room, where a motionless figure lay, bandaged like a mummy, and where the rank odor of strong drugs hung like smoke in the air. The young physician spoke in a hushed voice.

"Is Dr. Haynes in the house? I should like him to look at Paul before he goes out."

A Careless Maid

"I think he is changing the dressing on Keith's hands," replied Helen. "He will have finished in a few minutes. How is Paul?"

"No better."

Helen sighed wearily. "Oh, dear!" she complained in a low voice. "It is cruel for anyone to have to suffer as those two men suffer! And all because of what? Just because poor Beatrice happened to have a maid who went out for a stroll leaving a lamp burning close to a muslin curtain! The girl had no business to leave the children anyway. I don't mean to be cruel—but I am glad I sent her off to the city. She deserves to lose her place. When I think of that dear brother of mine, I feel as if I could get forgive her for her carelessness. Of course Paul is unconscious most of the time, but poor Keith is in constant pain. It wrings my heart to hear him moan.

"It is because he moans that you think he is so badly hurt!" snapped the doctor, with the impatient brutality of overstrained nerves. "Mr. Lacy's burns are superficial. Paul's are killing him. He is one great throbbing blister from his waist up. As for his being unconscious—I wish to God that he was, for then perhaps he would forget his pain.

"Forgive me, Mrs. Robbins, if I speak rudely. I don't desire for a minute that Lacy is suffering. But Paul is going through a white hell-fire. I have given him all the morphine that I dare, but it only dulls the agony a little—that's all. He's lying on a bed of ridiculous torture there, and he keeps a stiff upper lip, and never whines—God bless him!"

Although he had turned away quickly, under the pretence of looking out of the window, Helen had seen the moisture apring to his eyes, and whatever restraint had arisen in her breast at his blunt speech, was swept away. Impulsively, she laid her hand on the young man's arm.

"It's horrible, Dr. Yeager!" she exclaimed. "Of course I appreciate that Keith is in no danger. But he's my brother and it hurts me to see him suffer. Here comes Dr. Haynes now!"

And, leaving the two physicians together, she hurried away to look up her own and Beatrice's children, and to reassure herself that they, at least, were all right.

Beatrice Minor awoke again toward sunset, through the darkness of her darkened room she could see the red light of the waning day, and uttered a sharp cry of fear, which was checked as soon as she saw the nurse and physician standing on the other side of the room. She did not try to think how she came to be lying here in her friend's house. She only knew that the children were all right, and that she was resting. She told the doctor that she was very well, and dropped off again into the deep sleep that sometimes follows upon the exhaustion of shock and fever.

The next morning she smiled almost brightly at Dr. Haynes as he entered her room.

"I am much better today," she announced weakly. "Perhaps I can get up."

"That you think so is a good sign," answered the physician, encouragingly. "But, dear lady, it will be some time yet before you are up."

"Did I dream that there was a fire?" murmured Beatrice, half to the physician, half to herself. "Or did our house burn down? Her eyes grew suddenly wide and startled.

"Well, it wasn't a pleasant dream, anyway, was it?" said the doctor, evasively.

"No, it wasn't," assented the widow. "But, thank Heaven, the children are all right and safe. Have I been very ill?"

"You will be if you persist in talking," answered Dr. Haynes. And his patient, too weak to argue, said no more.

On the floor above, Paul Maynard spoke for the first time since he had been carried, more corpse than man, into the house. His blistered lips moved painfully, and the nurse, bending above him, had to strain her ears to catch his words.

"The children," he whispered, "were they hurt?"

"Not a bit!" the nurse assured him. "They are all right!"

Then, used though she was, by hospital training, to the sight of suffering, sudden tears blinded her sight as she looked down on the prostrate and bandaged form.

Advice to Those Who Have Lung Trouble

Tuberculosis is said to be curable by simply living in the open air and taking an abundance of fresh eggs and milk. Do all you possibly can to add strength and increase weight; eat wholesome, nourishing food, and breathe the cleanest and purest air, and then, if health and strength do not return, add the tonic and beneficial effects of Eckman's Alterative, and what it did in this case:

405 E. 5th St., Wilmington, Del.

"Gentlemen: In January, 1908, I was taken with hemorrhages of the lungs. My physician, one of the leading practioners, said that it was lung trouble. I took cure and milk in quantities, but I got very weak. The doctors said I would not gain in weight as long as I stayed in the store; but I kept on working and praised each day that I might get well. I believe my prayers were answered, for Mr. C. A. Lippincott, my employer (Lippincott and Co., Department Store, 306 to 314 Market street, Wilmington, Del.), had learned of a remedy called Eckman's Alterative that had done great good, and upon his recommendation I began taking it. I continued taking it about three months and finally noticed the cleansing effect it was having, for I coughed up the germs. Alterative saved my life. I sent my spittle later to the State Board of Health to be examined for tuberculosis bacilli, and none were found. My doctor died from Consumption when I was about two years old.

"I write this testimonial so that others may learn of the wonderful merits of Eckman's Alterative.

CASSIDY URGES ALL TO ATTEND HEARING ON ROTTEN EGG MEASURE of YOU have been eating the cakes and pies made from these eggs.

Morris Bregg is only one of these rotten egg dealers. Here are the others:

THE STANDARD EGG COMPANY, NO. 111 SOUTH MARKET STREET.

THE WESTERN EGG COMPANY, NO. 100 RICHMOND STREET.

JOSEPH EISENBERG, NO. 118 RICHMOND STREET.

Who the Men Are.

And if you want to know the names of the men—or rather, the rotten egg dealers —who form these companies, here they are:

The Standard Egg Company—Jacob Fox, Morris Wiser, Samuel Gottfried.

The Western Egg Company — Max Schwerer, Oscar Rottenberg.

These are the "bosses." Each of these firms employs several men, boys and girls to "candle" the rotten eggs, to break them into cans and to deliver them to the bakers.

Morris Brown, for instance, employs Joseph Ruthstein to deliver his rotten eggs. He has an old, dingy wagon that needs a new coat of paint, for this part of his trade. Brown also does a business in good eggs—and for this he has bright, new-painted wagons.

Joseph Eisenberg and the Western Egg Company employ Nathan Altschuler, a lad of eighteen or so—half a day apiece. The Western Egg Company has Sam Black to deliver their eggs.

The Standard Egg Company's delivery boy is Abe Standard Goldfein.

Morris Brown employs Morris Lobel as an egg-breaker, and egg-candler, and sometimes as a delivery boy. Brown also employs Benjamin Lebsetter to candle his rotten eggs.

The Standard Egg Company and Morris Brown also employ girls—Brown has two and the Standard has two. Let's not tell their names.

There are other employes. No need to name them all. It is the "bosses" who are responsible—who have been violating the law, and who have been SELLING DEADLY, POISONOUS, ROTTEN EGGS TO BAKERS FOR USE IN FOOD.

There is threefold blame for this traffic.

THE HEAVIEST BLAME RESTS UPON THE OFFICIALS WHOSE DUTY IT IS TO ENFORCE THE HEALTH LAWS OF THE STATE. For if they did their duty this traffic could not persist.

BLAME ALSO RESTS UPON THE BAKERS. For if they were as careful as the nature of their business demands, they would make sure that they did not use ROTTEN EGGS IN FOOD.

And, finally, THE ROTTEN EGG MEN ARE TO BLAME. They have openly violated the law. They should be driven out of the rotten egg business, and should pay the full legal penalty for their transgressions.

Here is the law:

NO PERSON SHALL * * * OFFER FOR SALE OR SELL * * * ANY ARTICLE OF FOOD WHICH IS ADULTERATED. FOOD SHALL BE DEEMED TO BE ADULTERATED * * * IF IT CONSISTS WHOLLY OR IN PART OF A DISEASED, DECOMPOSED, PUTRID, TAINTED OR ROTTEN ANIMAL OR VEGETABLE SUBSTANCE. WHOEVER VIOLATES THIS LAW SHALL BE PUNISHED BY A FINE OF NOT LESS THAN TWENTY-FIVE NOR MORE THAN FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS.

Up To State Board.

It is the duty of the State Board of Health through its inspectors and officials to enforce this law.

THE LAW HAS NOT BEEN ENFORCED. THE VERY RECORDS OF THE STATE BOARD OF HEALTH SHOW THIS.

The records of the Board for 1912 show these facts:

Ninety-eight samples of eggs were examined.

Sixty-three were found good.

THIRTY-FIVE were found "adulterated, or varying from the legal standard."

ONLY FIVE prosecutions are recorded.

Let the State Board of Health answer—WHY WERE THERE ONLY FIVE PROSECUTIONS, WHEN THIRTY-FIVE VIOLATIONS OF THE LAW WERE DETECTED?

Of these five prosecutions, four are now before the Supreme Court on appeal. The other, against the Standard Egg Company, was PLACED ON FILE, WITH THE CONSENT OF THE AGENT OF THE STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.

The Standard Egg Company was found guilty in the lower court.

In the Superior Court, the record of the case is closed on file ON PAYMENT OF EXPENSES." And then, in parenthesis appear the words, "NO EXPENSES."

That is, that particular violation of the law cost the Standard Egg Company directly nothing at all.

WHY?

At any rate, the fact remains that the present law is not enforced. Furthermore, the present law is not adequate

But in Pennsylvania we have a law, under which I was able, as inspector, to stamp out the rotten egg traffic in Philadelphia without much trouble.

Why not pass such a law in Massachusetts?

The law, or a similar one, has been introduced.

A hearing upon it will be given tomorrow by the Committee on Public Health. Here are the important sections of this bill:

Parts of the Bill.

Section 1.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporate body to sell, offer for sale, expose for sale or have in possession with intent to sell, eggs that are unfit for food. * * *

Section 2.—This act shall apply to eggs that, either before or after removal from the shell, are wholly or partly decayed or decomposed, and to eggs in the fluid state, any portion of which is wholly or partly decayed or decomposed, or that are mixed with parts of eggs that are derived from eggs that are wholly or partly decayed or decomposed. This act shall also apply to frozen masses or broken eggs, if the mass contains eggs that are wholly or partly decayed or decomposed, or that are mixed with parts of eggs that have been taken from eggs that were wholly or partly decayed or decomposed.

Section 3.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporate body, to use eggs that are adulterated or partly decayed or decomposed, in the preparation of food products, or to preserve, eggs that are unfit for food—your food, and mine.

Whether this is true or not, I cannot say. IF IT IS TRUE, DO YOU THINK HE IS THE KIND OF MAN YOU WANT TO ENFORCE YOUR HEALTH LAWS?

I am anxious to see who will come to the State House Tuesday to oppose this bill to protect you from rotten eggs.

AND I APPEAL TO YOU TO COME, AND HELP SECURE A LAW THAT WILL BANISH THIS TRAFFIC FROM BOSTON.

Why Has Health Board Not Enforced Pure Food Laws?

It is the duty of the State Board of Health through its inspectors and officials to enforce the law.

THE LAW HAS NOT BEEN ENFORCED. THE VERY RECORDS OF THE STATE BOARD OF HEALTH SHOW THIS.

The records of the board for 1912 show these facts:

Ninety-eight samples of eggs were examined.

THIRTY-FIVE were found "adulterated, or varying from the legal standard."

ONLY FIVE prosecutions are recorded.

Let the State Board of Health answer—WHY WERE THERE ONLY FIVE PROSECUTIONS, WHEN THIRTY-FIVE VIOLATIONS OF THE LAW WERE DETECTED?

WHY?

BEFORE THE COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC HEALTH.

Three Kinds of Eggs.

Let me tell you again, just what these rotten eggs are, that you and your families are now eating, and who are the kindness of Morris Brown, the Standard Egg Company, the Western Egg Company and Joseph Eisenberg.

From the egg man's point of view, there are three kinds of eggs:

1—Fresh eggs, or eggs which have not begun to show any sign of decomposition, either because they were recently laid, or because they have been kept in cold storage.

2—Light spots, heavy spots and red rots—eggs in which the process of decomposition has made the egg worthless for sale in the shell, and in which the bacteria or germs which accompany decomposition, have brewed their little dose of poison.

3—Black rots and musty eggs, in which the process of decomposition has gone so far that there is a horrible stench or odor, you would rush any food product in which the eggs were used.

Middle Class Used by Bakers.

The first class only is fit for food. The last class cannot be used for food, but the great middle class can be used for food, and IS USED BY SOME OF THE BIGGEST BAKERIES IN BOSTON.

I bought some of these eggs from the rotten egg dealers. I had them examined by a bacteriologist. He found forty million bacteria in a cubic centimeter of one sample, and lesser numbers of bacteria in the others.

BACTERIA IN AN EGG MEANS THAT DECOMPOSITION HAS BEGUN OR IS WELL ADVANCED, OR THAT THE EGG IS FILTHY.

The bacteriologist tried some of these eggs on two little guinea pigs. Both guinea pigs died.

THAT THOSE EGGS GO INTO YOUR FOOD.

The conditions under which these eggs are prepared for sale to the bakers are indescribably filthy. I could not describe them to you, as I have seen them, in any words the language affords.

Joseph Eisenberg and the Western Egg Company are located in cellars, and Morris Brown has a cellar and the floors above. The Standard Egg Company has one floor at No. 111 South Market street.

Joseph Eisenberg and the Western Egg Company have been raided in their cellar quarters during the last week—by orders of a city health official.

I am told this is the first time these quarters have been whitewashed in OVER THREE YEARS.

The sudden zeal of the health official has a fun to it. Some one suggested to me that the egg bill, up for hearing next Tuesday, would cause trouble.

The official has the reputation of believing that a "spot" egg—one in which decomposition has begun, so that the yolk sticks to the shell—is fit for food—your food, and mine.

Whether this is true or not, I cannot say. IF IT IS TRUE, DO YOU THINK HE IS THE KIND OF MAN YOU WANT TO ENFORCE YOUR HEALTH LAWS?

I am anxious to see who will come to the State House Tuesday to oppose this bill to protect you from rotten eggs.

AND I APPEAL TO YOU TO COME, AND HELP SECURE A LAW THAT WILL BANISH THIS TRAFFIC FROM BOSTON.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

Stocks were down when trading began and locally, although the copper metal situation is regarded as improved, copper issues had a tendency to sag. Among issues to decline here during the first half hour were Butte & Superior, Copper Range, Bay Consolidated, Osceola, U. S. Smelting and Calumet & Arizona. United Fruit lost a point in the first half hour.

Canadian Pacific showed the most loss at the opening of the New York market. By the end of the first hour, however, Arcadian, American Can and Northern Pacific were among stocks to show gains.

A Washington dispatch says that there was a general belief there this morning that the United States Supreme Court would not render a decision on the Minnesota State Case today.

The New York sub-treasury gained $464,000 from banks on Saturday and since Friday has gained $1,536,000.

The Bank of Germany reports a gain of 11,329,000 marks in cash for the week.

New York Opens Lower.

Prices were lower when the New York market opened. This was partly due to London, where the feeling is pessimistic and American stocks were irregular and reflected timidity on the part of traders. Berlin liquidation weakened the London market. It was feared that the monetary stringency would cause further restriction of financial facilities for the carryover. In the New York market all first prices were lower.

Canadian Pacific lost 3¾, while International Paper sold off 1¼ and International Paper preferred lost 3. May Department Stores were heavy, losing 2. Among the other declines were Utah Copper 1¼, Steel common ¾, U. S. Rubber common ⅝, Union Pacific 1⅛, Third Avenue Traction ⅛, Reading 1¼, Pennsylvania ⅛, Atchison ¼, Northern Pacific ¼, Norfolk & Western ⅝, Amalgamated 1, American Car Foundry ⅝, Chesapeake & Ohio ⅝, Missouri Pacific ¼, Mexican Petroleum 1, Erie 2⅛, Erie 1st preferred ½, C. & O. ¾, California Petroleum ⅛, B. R. T. 1⅛ and Anaconda ⅛.

The Curb was heavy.

Money High in Berlin.

The Berlin financial correspondent for Hearst newspapers cables from that city that money rates in Germany have broken all records for the first week in March. He says:

"The great industrial boom of three years, and the heavy demands upon capital, has been followed by the withdrawal of foreign assistance; then, the banks were drained of cash for hoarding, and the market was left impoverished.

"Merchants are experiencing the greatest difficulty in making collections. This has intensified the bad features of the situation, necessitating unusual demands upon bank credits and throwing great pressure upon the Reichsbank.

"The monetary stress will be sharply augmented at the end of this month, when some observers expect an outflow in the bank rate. Others take a more cheerful view, drawing attention to the banks's ample stock of metal and the lowness of foreign exchange."

Hoarding of Gold in Europe.

A leading brokerage house says a conservative estimate of the amounts of gold hoarded would be $100,000,000 for Germany, $150,000,000 for France, $75,000,000 for Austria and in the rest of Europe $175,000,000. This makes a total of $500,000,000 and is an immense sum of gold to lose from circulation.

There is a possibility that as much as $15,000,000 may be exported from this country this week, and $35,000,000 more already on the present movement, and more than $6,000,000 sent abroad last week.

Copper Higher in London.

In the London copper market there was a steady tone at the opening with spot up 2s. 6d. and futures 3s. higher.

In trade there is hope that the metal situation has passed the crisis. The statement of the February output of copper producers created a favorable impression. "One of the leading copper men in New York," Thompson, Towle & Co., say, "expressed the opinion, before the statement was issued, that if it showed a decrease in stocks the price of copper would very quickly sell at 15¾ cents."

The February output of the Old Dominion Copper Co. was 2,381,000 pounds of refined copper, compared with 2,727,000 in January and 2,039,000 in the second month of 1912.

Last month Granby produced 1,770,212 pounds of blister copper compared with 1,792,345 pounds in January.

Financial News in Brief.

The gross earnings of the Jersey Central increased $185,981 in February, and the gain for eight months was $1,586,976.

John Pierpont Morgan, "Financial King of America," and General Porfirio Diaz, the deposed president of Mexico, are shipmates today on the White Star liner Adriatic and bound from Alexandria to Naples.

Gay & Sturgis also issued a folder on copper stocks, production, consumption and prices which carries the years 1908-13 to date.

The February gross earnings of Chicago Great Western were the largest in the road's history. So far in 1913 it has earned almost twice its fixed charges and a surplus exceeding 6 per cent on its $41,000,000 outstanding preferred stock.

Each succeeding monthly earnings statement of the New York, Ontario & Western, says Thompson, Towle & Co., add to the belief that the road may resume dividends at the meeting of the board to be held in June.

For 1912, the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern gained $5,922,619 in revenues and net increased $3,000,769. The increase in surplus was $2,315,018.

BABBITT WILLING TO RETURN TO FACE TRIAL AS SLAYER

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., March 10.—Preparations were begun today by the Ulster County authorities to extradite John Babbitt, who is under arrest in Portsmouth, N. H., and who has confessed to murdering Miss Emma Brooks near Highland more than four years ago. A message from Portsmouth today states that Babbitt, who has tuberculosis, will not resist efforts to extradite him, as he prefers to return and face trial.

He says he does not expect to live long enough for the law to impose the death penalty. Preparations are being made for a speedy trial of the case.

MISSING BANKER'S ACCOUNTS STRAIGHT

MARLBORO, March 10.—Directors of the Marlboro Co-operative Bank after a meeting today issued a statement in which they declared that the accounts of Treasurer Clinton B. Russell, who has been missing since Thursday, are correct, and the affairs of the bank will in no way be affected. The directors, with the Masonic fraternity, are making plans to spread a description of the missing official in an effort to find him.

Dickerson, who is retiring on a pension.

SYMPHONY MATINEE IS GREAT SUCCESS

Dr. Muck and the Boston Symphony Orchestra performed Tschaikowsky's "Pathetic" at the first afternoon concert for the Symphony Orchestra fund. The success of the matinee performances was unbroken and the leader's work was received with enthusiasm. Next Sunday afternoon the concert will be a joint recital by Julia Culp and Mr. Godowsky.

BEGIN CAMPAIGN TO END ICE CONTROL IN RHODE ISLAND

PROVIDENCE, March 10.—War was begun today on the Providence Ice Company to break its control of Rhode Island ice. Exports declare that with the ice-producing possibilities here the Providence company allows ice on many acres of Rhode Islands waters to melt and at the same time seeks to justify its increase in prices by deciding that it is forced to pay heavy freight charges to bring ice from neighboring places. It is charged that the company also, through leasehold rights, prevents others from taking ice from the waters.

CRAZED MAN JUMPS OFF ROOF SECOND TIME AND LIVES

While temporarily deranged, Augustus Green, twenty-nine, jumped from the roof of a shed in the rear of his home at No. 9 Park street, Dorchestown, today. The distance was twenty-five feet and Green was found half unconscious. Green sustained a laceration of the scalp. He was sent to the Relief Hospital. About two months ago Green jumped from the same shed and escaped without injury.

The Concluding Chapter of "The Mystery of Mary"

By GRACE LIVINGSTON HILL LUTZ

Copyright, 1913, by J. B. Lippincott Co.

"INDEED, sir, you wholly misunderstand the situation," he said to Dunham, with an air of injured innocence, "though perhaps you can scarcely be blamed.

"This girl is an escaped lunatic. We have been searching for her for days and have just traced her. It is our business to take her back at once. Her friends are in great distress about her. Moreover, she is dangerous and a menace to every guest in this house. She has several times attempted murder"—

"Stop!" roared Dunham, in a thunderous voice of righteous anger. "She is my wife. And you are her cousin. I know all about your plot to shut her up in an insane asylum and steal her fortune. I have found you sooner than I expected, and I intend to see that the law takes its full course with you."

Two policemen were arrived on the scene, with a number of saner bellboys and porters in their wake, ready to take part in the excitement.

Richard had turned deadly white at the words "She is my wife!" It was the death-knell of his hopes of securing the fortune for which he had not hesitated to sacrifice every particle of honor and principle. When he turned and saw impending retribution in the shape of the two stalwart representatives of the law, his first cunning came into his face, and with one swift motion he turned to fee up the staircase close at hand.

"Not much you don't," said an enterprising bellboy, dodging in front of him the way and tripping up the scoundrel in his flight.

The Two Prisoners

The policemen were upon him and had him handcuffed in an instant. The fetid man now began to protest that he was but an innocent tool, hired to help discover the whereabouts of an escaped lunatic, as he supposed. He was walked off in the patrol wagon without further ceremony.

It was all over in a few minutes. The elevator carried off the detective, the policemen and their two prisoners. The door closed behind Dunham and his bride, and the curious guests who had peered out, alarmed by the uproar, saw nothing but a few bell-boys standing in the hall, describing to one another the scene as they had witnessed it.

"He stood here and I stood right there," said one, "and the policeman, he come—"

The guests could not find out just what had happened, but supposed it to be either an attempted robbery, and retired behind locked doors to see that their jewels were safely hidden.

Dunham drew the trembling girl into his arms and tried to see that the tears rained down the white cheeks as her head lay upon his breast, and he kissed them away.

An Outward Sign

"Oh!" she sobbed, shuddering. "If you had not come! It was terrible, terrible! I believe my mind have lulled me rather than have let me go again."

Gradually his tender ministrations calmed her, but she insisted on going to his face.

"You do not know yet that I am all I say. You have nothing to prove it. Of course, by and by, when I can get to my guardians with your letter and explain matters, they will understand, you will know, but I don't see how you can trust me till then."

For answer he brought a ring to lay in front of her face and turned the flashing diamond outward, where it caught the single ray of setting sun that filtered into the hotel window.

"See, darling," he said. "It is your ring. I have worn it ever since as an outward sign that I trusted you."

Taken on Trust

"You are taking me on trust, though, to quite of all you say, and it is beautiful."

He laid his lips against hers. "Yes," he said, "it is very beautiful, and it is best."

It was very still in the room for a moment while she nestled close to him and his eyes drank in the sweetness of her face.

"See," said he, taking a tiny violet case from his pocket and touching the spring that opened it. "I have amused myself finding a mate to your stone. I thought perhaps you would let me wear your ring always, while you were mine."

He lifted the jewel from its white velvet bed and showed her the inscription inside: "Mary, from Tryon." Then he slipped it on her finger to guard the wedding ring he had given her at the church. His arm that encircled her clasped her left wrist, and the two diamonds flashed side by side. The last gleam of the setting sun, ere it vanished behind the tall buildings on the West, glanced in and blazed the gems into tangled beams of glory, darting out in many colored prisms to light the vision of the future of the man and the woman. He bent and kissed her again, and their eyes met like other jewels, in which gleamed the glory of their love and trust.

THE END.

Kaiser Forgives the Crown Prince.

BERLIN—The Crown Prince has at last apparently been restored to his imperial father's favor. The Tageblatt announces that the Prince will leave his command of hussars at Danzig and return to Berlin as commander of another regiment here, the Grenadier Guards. The return of the Crown Prince to an infantry regiment is a return to traditions, as all the Princes of Prussia since the day of the great Frederick have been brought up as infantry officers.

Cheaper Fuel for Autos.

LONDON—By an invention patented by the British Motor Syndicate, Ltd., it is hoped to end the London taxicab strike, which has been going on eleven weeks. Life Is a Short Walk Along a Narrow Thread of Destiny

Hope Keeps Us Balanced as We Walk the Narrow Line. Life is Short as We See It, but in Reality It Is Without Beginning, and Never Ends—And, Long or Short, It Is All That We Have.

Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal-Examiner.

Each of us walks alone and must balance himself through life. Many millions walk but a few steps and fall back into the infinite whence they came. Other millions walk half or three-quarters of the way. A small percentage finish the full, natural span of a normal life.

Hesitating, balancing, leaning to this side and to that side, you go along the span that leads from birth to death.

We have all got to take the journey, walk the span, whether we like it or not.

We are not asked when we come here whether we want to come. And it is not left to us to say when we shall go. We come without knowing why, we go without knowing why, and we travel our journey balanced on a thread stretched between the finger and thumb of Destiny.

We are not, however, mere machines wound up and set in motion. Something is left to our own decision. We get an inheritance from fathers and mothers through thousands of generations, and it is true that we can have only what they give us.

But we have above everything, and in addition to everything, WILL POWER, the power of thought based on observation and guided by conscience.

We can use our inheritance of character and temperament as the sculptor uses the block of marble, and we can carve that inheritance as we will and at least make of it the best that it can produce.

This you see illustrated in the portraits of human beings taken in childhood and in old age. You may find two pictures of children much alike—the faces filled with goodness, cheerfulness, kindness and hope.

And the same two faces in old age will be as far apart as vice and kindness. One will have grown stronger and better, and the other will show the stamp of the evil thoughts and the uncontrolled passions and wasted will power.

Those that are the most fortunate among men are able, in the brief span of life, to accomplish work that lasts for centuries, helping others that follow on the shaky walk across the taut thread. Some have been able, in one life, to benefit endless millions of lives after them. These have been the great teachers, discoverers, explorers, scientists, philosophers—and, above all, the fearless tellers of new truths.

Blessed are these able to do in one life a work that will help hundreds of millions.

But there is good work that EVERY human being can do, there are rules that all CAN FOLLOW, and each man, as he walks life's thread, should make these rules for himself and follow them.

Do your duty as well as you can do it—and begin by not hurting others in the effort to please or help yourself.

The first duty is to those nearest you. If every man of strength would help the half-dozen human beings nearest to him the problems of the world would soon be settled. The help must be of the right kind, not merely charity—although that is needed—but also sympathy, a good example, patience with weakness and dullness, and just dealings even with those that are unjust.

It is possible for every human being who will TO DO HIS DUTY, to think not only of himself, but of others—of the whole race and of the future race. In that fact there is complete comfort for every one of us.

Each CAN do his duty, and he who does THAT has done all that can be asked and all that any man ever did since the world began.

Life is tiresome, troublesome, full of care, disappointment and bitterness for those that carry responsibility and realize their shortcomings. But it has its rewards as great as its worries.

To possess the friendship and affection of one sincere and loyal human being, to put the welfare of another ahead of your own, finding happiness in that, and to feel, when you reach the end of the string and the time comes to fall off into the grave, you have done what you could, have not neglected those that had a right to count upon you—that makes life worth while and wipes out its disappointments.

What every man must learn unless his life is to be a failure is to control himself and put his selfish desires and feelings in second place.

The man who controls himself through his will, who realizes that the shortness of life increases responsibility for the use of every hour, and who finally lives, day by day, as he would live if he knew that that day was the last—such a man is happy and his life worth while.

"He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city."—Proverbs xvi., 32.

GETTING READY FOR JULY

By LILIAN LAUFERTY

SAY, it's raining and it's gloomy, and there must be leaden skies far above my office window, where I cannot lift my eyes. And the air's so dark and murky that the very smoke looks white, while I know below are puddles I must struggle through tonight. Isn't that a dreary outlook for a pair of tired eyes, with the very smoke discouraged so it does not dare to rise?

Well, they tell me that tomorrow will be rainy like today, so you see there is no prospect for a fellow to feel gay or to write of "Spring" and "Flowers" or the sort of verse that's due, just to fit the time and season and to come along in lieu of the Christmas verse and snow stuff and the lovely valentines that must run along each season in their well-appointed lines.

Gee! some fellow, when 'twas raining, said 'twas pouring daffodils, and I s'pose he had lumbago and the fever and the chills; still he had to put the stuff across as perfect sunshine dope, and tell you that in gloom there lies the promise and the hope of the wondrous days a-coming which the rainy day has made. That won't do for me, I'm thinking, though I'm just a bit afraid that the time will come next Summer when Old Sol is burning bright, when I'd like to see some rain-clouds come along and douse the light.

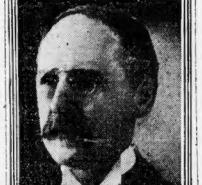
Motor Discusses the Serious Question of Traffic and Methods of Facilitating Its Movement—The Policeman in the Maelstrom of the Crowded Thoroughfares Has No Time or Inclination for Grafting.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS



IT will be universally conceded that one of the most inspiring sights in a great city is that of a traffic policeman at some busy corner, uplifting his white-gloved hand and stilling the maelstrom of the crowded street with the instantaneousness and incredibility of a miracle.

Where can you find so vivid a symbol of the reign of law as that commanding, motionless hand? From it radiates, like an electric beam, the concentrated will of nearly a million people.

Away back up the line of the street on either side the glittering autos come to rest and pack themselves silently in waiting rows, pressing closer each moment, like the banking flakes of a snowstorm. At the same moment another torrent is let loose, flowing at right angles to that which has been arrested.

Then a sharp whistle, a wave of the potent hand, and the rushing currents are reversed again.

But this wonderful view of the life arteries of a great modern metropolis suggests certain thoughts relating to the details of the scene which call for careful consideration.

Motor Magazine Shows Great Loss of Time at Crossings

One of these thoughts I find expressed in the current number of the magazine called MOTOR. It concerns the great aggregate loss of time that the existing system of street traffic control involves. Where the vast currents intersect there is inevitable delay for one or the other. Each must wait in its turn. Hundreds of foot passengers must lose many valuable minutes while the impenetrable torrent of vehicles flows across their way.

They take their lives in their hands if they attempt to traverse it before the arresting hand is raised.

Then, when the valves are closed on one side and opened on the other, the hurrying autos, in their turn, must lose an equal amount of time, every second of which has its value, either in money, convenience or pleasure.

Let Currents Pass at Different Levels at Intersections

Various suggestions are made of means of avoiding this double loss. One much advocated plan is to have certain thoroughfares devoted specially to auto traffic, but autos, like other vehicles, must go everywhere in order to meet the needs of their owners.

Another suggestion is to change the grades of streets, or to span them with bridges, so that the conflict of crossing lines of travel may be avoided by carrying them on different levels. The difficulties, in either direction, are sufficiently evident, and I have no intention of offering a solution. A great deal of human wisdom will have to be concentrated on the problem before it can be disposed of. But it presents one of the crying needs of the day, and everybody ought to give some attention to it.

Another thought suggested by the scenes at the great crossings relates to the qualities of the men in control. Forty years ago, in the days of the old stage coaches, when Boston was hardly more than a village compared with what it is today, and when autos had not been dreamed of, there was an oft-repeated story of a country magistrate.

This magistrate, upon visiting the metropolis, declared, in dismay, that it required more intelligence to cross a city street than to be a Justice of the Peace in a country town.

Think, then, of the quick intelligence, the prompt judgment, the decision of character required of the policeman who places himself in the centre of a street roaring with the multiplied traffic of these days and undertakes to control it all at his will and with a motion of his hand.

A thousand opposed wills meet his, muttered curses are flung at him, he is the centre of a moral hurricane, but he must stand there immovable and master all opposition.

There is no image taken from the physical world that truly represents him. The lighthouse defies the storm, and sends out its warning beams through the flying scud, but it cannot arrest the rushing surges. This blue-clad lighthouse of the street not only warns, but protects, governing the tempest and directing the waves.

The Traffic Policeman Represents the Force at Its Best

Here appears the ideal representative of the police system at its best. Graft does not touch him; he would have no time to be dishonest if he had the wish; his courage equals that of the soldier, and his power of instant, decisive action rivals that of the general on the battlefield. Boston has reason to be proud of its traffic policemen, but it may be still more proud of itself when it shall have rendered their hard job no longer necessary.

Contemplating Matrimony

Dorothy Dix Writes an Open Letter to the Young Man of Twenty, Who Thinks He Has Come to Man's Estate and Wants to Take Unto Himself a Wife.

Read This Letter, Young Man—Read This, Everyone Interested in Youths. The Guidance of These Words Will Help You to Success and Happiness.

By DOROTHY DIX

MY DEAR JOHN—You are twenty years old. You earn a salary of $20 a week, and you are thinking of getting married, and want to know what I think about it.

My boy, I think that any man, rich or poor, who marries before he is twenty-five years old is a fit subject for a lunacy commission to sit upon. When a poor young man, who has his way to make in the world, even considers getting married before he is twenty-five years old, his next friend—as the law puts it—should lock him up in a padded cell until he recovers from his suicidal mania.

For that's what an untimely marriage is for a man. It's suicide. It's hari-kari. It's self-destruction by lingering torture. It's letting yourself in for having your nose kept on the grindstone for the balance of your life—and there is some pain in that. What?

Of course you will say that there have been cases when men married young and when they were poor, and that they later on became rich and prominent citizens. Yes. Miracles do happen occasionally, but they are as rare as hen's teeth. What you have got to figure on is not the occasional exception, but the great majority; and if you will contemplate that for a while you will see that there is not one chance in ten thousand for the man who burdens himself with a family in his boyhood to ever win the prize in the race of life. He is too heavily handicapped to even run.

Doubtless you are very much in love with some little pink-and-white maiden, and you are firmly convinced that you cannot live without her.

A Boy's First Love Is the Purest Emotion He Ever Knows

I will not belittle calf love. The first love of a boy, when he is full of high ideals and romance and enthusiasm, is the best and purest emotion he ever knows, and the pity of it is that it cannot last. But it never does, my boy. It is as fleeting as the dew on the rose in the early morning, and there is nothing that accelerates its going so fast as to marry the object upon whom it has been bestowed. Especially if you haven't money enough to pay the matrimonial bill.

This is a brutal truth, but it is a truth. Love flies out of the window when the bill collector begins hammering on the door. Romance is, at best, only a bit of pink chiffon, and it wears to rags and tatters when you have to use it for washing pots and scrubbing floors. People who cannot afford enough bread and meat to put in their stomachs take very little interest in the state of their affections.

To make marriage a success, it must be properly financed, as much so as any other business partnership; and to marry before you have the means to do this, son, is to invite certain disaster. When the day comes that a woman represents to you the eternal sacrifices that you have to make for her, that hour you will hate her. So just fix your notion of getting married away with your plan to have a steam yacht and a racing car and all the good clothes you want. Wait until you can afford them, for a wife is just as much a luxury as are automobiles and yachts and things. And one to which you are not entitled until you have the price.

If I had a son I would have the old proverb, "A young man married is a young man marred," painted in letters a foot high above his dressing table, and on another wall I would emblazon Kipling's immortal sentiment about those traveling fastest who travel alone.

I have seen so many young men full of ability, full of ambition, full of promise, full of enthusiasm and hope, extinguished by early marriages, their spirits broken by the petty cares of the family man, the strength that should have taken them to fame and fortune wasted on walking the floor with the baby crying with colic, and trying to get along with their silly, hysterical, nagging wives with which they had saddled themselves in the blind ignorance of their youth. Behind the failure of nearly every might-have-been you will find a boy marriage.

Marriage Means a Double Expense, Not Counting the Babies

To put the proposition at its baldest, it costs more than twice as much to support two people than it does one, and when you add to this the expense of babies you can see that the poor young man never has any chance to save a part of his salary. And success in business depends on what you've got on deposit in the bank when opportunity knocks at your door.

Then if you are married you are not free to go where fortune beckons. You have got your wife and kids to think of. Many a man is tied down to a poor job all his life because his wife wouldn't leave her sewing society to go with him to the distant city where he could have become rich.

Likewise there is this very unsentimental point to be borne in mind, and that is that as long as a man is single he is an object of interest to everybody, and they are willing to push him along, but the minute he gets married he becomes nothing but the husband of his wife who must shift for himself. For some psychological reason of sex, that nobody can explain, even the most unflirtatious old mother in Israel would rather buy a spool of thread of a single man than a married man, she casts a kindly eye on her husband's bachelor clerks, and invites them to dinner while she snubs the married ones. And we all have daily ocular proof of how much more pious the sisters are when the preacher isn't married than they are when he's blessed with a wife and little olive branches.

So, son, if you want to be happily married wait until you are at least twenty-five before you pick out a wife, and for heaven's sake don't marry until you have the price.

Don't Marry When a Wife Will Merely Mean a Load of Debt

Don't marry when a wife will merely mean a load of debt. And above all don't marry until you've got your feet so firmly planted on the ladder that you can climb anyhow, even with the added weight of a wife.

Wait until you are good and ready before you marry. Don't let any girl bluff you into marrying her by weeping over you. Don't let Mamie's or Sadie's parents unload their daughter on you to support because they don't want to do it themselves. Take your time about getting married, for when you are married, my boy, you are married a long, long time. And it generally seems longer.
